1st Space Shuttle Test Landing Made At California Base

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two astronauts jockeyed the Space Shuttle Enterprise to a safe desert landing today after a fast, steep glide off the back of its mother ship, a jet transport plane. It was the first solo flight of America's newest manned spacecraft.

Astronauts Fred Haise, 43, and Gordon Fullerton, 40, aided by a computerized control system, brought the engineless, 75-ton craft to a perfect touchdown in a trail of dust on a long, dry, lakebed runway.

The glide from an altitude of about 25,000 feet took a little over five minutes, during which the shuttle turned, banked and apparently handled just the way it had been designed.

The successful flight marked a major milestone in the development of the shuttle, which is to be a reusable "space bus" in the 1980s, capable of carrying seven persons and up to 65,000 pounds of cargo into Earth orbit.

Donald K. Slayton, manager of the approach and landing test, had said that the only purpose of today's flight was "to just park that beauty back on the lakebed nicely."

Haise, in putting the white and black craft through its first solo maneuvers over the desert, said it seemed to handle a little better than a special trainer in which he had made many simulations of today's flight.

The shuttle was carried into the air, piggyback, aboard a Boeing 747. Thousands of spectators watched the takeoff, about a minute ahead of the scheduled 8 a.m. PDT liftoff. When the pair, accompanied by chase planes, reached the proper altitude, explosive charges broke the connection between the craft, launching the shuttle on its glide.

The entire maneuver — from takeoff to landing — took less than an hour.

The landing was a preview of how future manned space missions will end — not with the traditional ocean splashdowns of the Apollo moon missions, but with shuttles touching down at high speeds.

Lacking any engine that could permit a second landing try, the shuttle must be guided perfectly during its approach at more than 300 m.p.h. The landing requires precise flying skills and thus a system of five computers and a set of electronic nerves translates the pilots' control orders into the shuttle's maneuvers.

To ensure a faultless landing a funnel of electronic microwave beams is aimed at the speeding shuttle from a ground transmitter. Much like an airliner making a cloud-shrouded instrument landing, the shuttle can follow the beams down to the touchdown point.

The airworthiness of the Boeing 747 carrier plane with the shuttle riding on top was proven in a series of eight previous flights here earlier this year. During the final "captive tests," Haise and Fullerton — alternating with a second crew, Joseph Engle and Richard Truly — rode in the shuttle as the mated craft rehearsed the separation maneuvers.

Today's test is the first of about eight planned to explore the cumbersome shuttle's gliding and handling characteristics.

Slayton has said that it flies like a jet fighter with a failed engine; it falls steeply and quickly. He said that a single successful test of the landing capabilities would be sufficient to go ahead with the first actual test firing of the shuttle into orbit, scheduled for early in 1979.

Measure Unconstitutional?

See Budget Court Fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A court battle could be shaping up in a dispute between GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes and majority Democrats over an embattled budget language bill which the governor says was unconstitutionally enacted.

Thomas J. Moyer, the governor's No. 1 aide, called court action "certainly a possibility" late Thursday after being advised that Democratic leaders plan to sign the document today. Rhodes' warning notwithstanding.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Democrat Lt. Gov. Richard F. Celeste, who presides over the Senate by virtue of his office, advised the governor of their decision in separate letters earlier Thursday.

The letters were in response to ones Rhodes wrote last week to the Democrats, asserting the budget language bill violates constitutional requirements for bills to be on a "single subject."

Moyer said the governor will decide his next move within 10 days, but stressed "we just haven't discussed our options."

In his response to Rhodes, Riffe cited court decisions which show, he said, that the single subject language is "directory" and not binding upon the legislature. He said he is convinced the constitutional language should be given the broadest possible interpretation.

"Were it otherwise," Riffe said, "a significant portion of all legislation, and virtually every appropriation bill could be deemed to violate the constitutional limitation."

Democrats split off most of the spending authority language in the 1977-79 appropriations act, already approved, and put it into the unprecedented "language" measure as a means of restricting Rhodes' veto powers.

Rhodes can use his line item veto on bills which appropriate funds—such as the $13 billion appropriations measure enacted June 30—but must approve or reject totally any measure that doesn't contain an actual allocation of funds.

The speaker pointed out that appropriations measures of the past have included the budget language, covering a multiplicity of subjects, but that the governor has not refused before on the basis of the constitutional restriction.

"As I review the bill, I believe all of its provisions are reasonably related to the budgetary functions of the state and encompass the legislature's rightful prerogatives in the legislative process," Riffe's letter said.

He concluded by saying that if he were to follow the governor's advice, he would "be violating my own constitutional responsibility."

Riffe and Celeste both said the requirement for them to sign enacted bills—before they go to the governor—is procedural and doesn't mean that they can withhold their signatures on the basis of a bill's content.

In his letter to Rhodes, Celeste said in part that for him to withhold his signature "would be an unauthorized extension of my responsibility, which is to certify that legislation presented for your signature has met the procedural requirements for passage."

The bill is expected to be received in official form and signed by Riffe and Ocasek today, before being sent to the governor.

Carter Goes Over Panama Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is going over the new Panama Canal pact word for word so he can okay every detail and start a sales blitz to convince Congress and the people it's safe, sure to improve Latin American relations and worth ratifying.

For the first time as President, Carter cleared his schedule today of all appointments but his regular intelligence briefing so he could devote the day to studying the agreement.

Approval was expected. Carter gave his preliminary opinion Thursday: "I'm very pleased with it."

Moreover, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz would not have agreed to the principles in the pact without the President's consent. Agreement was reached with the Panamanian government Wednesday night.

Officials at the departments of state and defense joined in today's review.

They and the President worked with copies of the agreement furnished by Bunker and Linowitz. Carter asked the ambassadors to note special points of emphasis in the margins.

Carter welcomed the ambassadors Thursday as they arrived at the White House by helicopter after flying by jet from Panama. They went directly to the Cabinet Room, where Bunker and Linowitz gave the President details of the agreement first hand.

The joint chiefs of staff, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Undersecretary of State Warren Christopher listened to the report. Gen. David C. Jones, Air Force chief of staff, said the agreement is one "the Joint Chiefs could support fully" and help ratify.

"This is a crucial element in the American people's acceptance of the treaty," Carter said. "Above all else the security of our nation stands as the greatest concern with me and Ambassador Bunker and Ambassador Linowitz."

"With this treaty, which is the culmination of 13 years of hard work, I think we've arrived at a point where we can adequately defend and control the operation of the canal throughout this century," the President declared.

He said the United States "can help, along with Panama, to guarantee the neutrality of the canal in perpetuity, its openness to international shipping, and in time of danger to our own country, with our own warships being given expedited passage."

This agreement has given the United States "a new sense of partnership between ourselves and the Panamanians," the President said. Linowitz and Bunker have said it will bring improved relationships with all Latin American nations.

"I think the biggest responsibility is now on our shoulders," Carter said. "And I accept the leadership role to convince the American people we have reached an agreement that is advantageous to our own country, to our national security and to the free and open guarantee that the Panama Canal will continue to be used by everyone."

The agreement calls for two pacts to replace the current treaty, signed in 1903, which gave the United States perpetual control over the canal and the adjacent Canal Zone. Under the new agreement, this country would yield control of the waterway by the end of the century.

The new treaty defining U.S. control expires Dec. 31, 1999.

It establishes the economic benefits that Panama would gain as a result of the canal operation. It also grants Panama full control of the Canal Zone within three years after the treaty is ratified and provides for the phasing out of the 14 U.S. military bases there.

Under the second new pact, Panama guarantees the neutrality of the canal, pledging it would remain open to ships of all flags. The Panamanians say the United States would keep the right to intervene if the canal were attacked by a foreign power.

Other terms provide a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal and provide Panama hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the agreement.

The President is organizing a large effort to sell the agreement to Congress and the public. He has ordered his top political aide, Hamilton Jordan, to head a team of planners on strategy. Jordan was a participant in the Cabinet Room meeting.

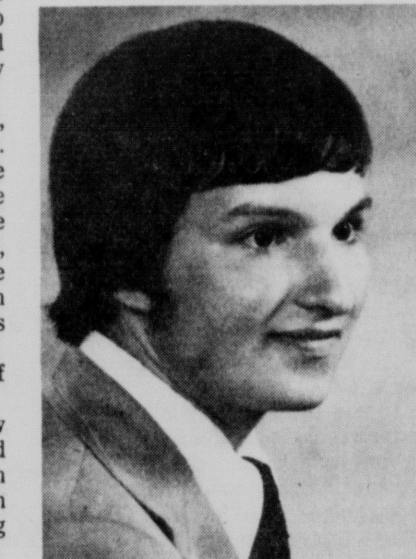

Bracing themselves for charges of "giveaway," the administration lobbyists will try to sell the new agreement to Congress as an act of statesmanship. But one Carter aide conceded the struggle for approval will be "one hell of a fight."

The Senate must ratify the treaties by the approval of 67 senators, two-thirds of the body. The House of Representatives must pass enabling legislation to carry out the treaty, but only a simple majority vote is needed there.

Panama radio reported that Carter would sign the treaty in Panama within two weeks and that Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian head of government, was inviting other Latin American leaders to the ceremony.

Powell said, however, that "there has been no decision on where the signing will take place."

CHS Graduate Given DeMolay Scholarship

JERRY L. YEATTS

Jerry L. Yeatts, a 1977 graduate of Circleville High School, has been awarded a $250 scholarship, renewable each year of college, from the Ohio DeMolay.

The son of Mrs. Hazel M. Yeatts, 507 N. Pickaway St., he plans to attend Ohio University this fall and major in psychology.

While at Circleville, he was a member of the Key Club, Latin Club, marching, concert, pep and state bands. He was a 1976 delegate to Buckeye Boys' State and in the senior class play cast. He was selected for two years for the Who's Who Among American High School Students listing.

Yeatts, the recipient of the 1977 Circleville LaSertoma Service to Mankind Award, is an Eagle Scout of Troop 52. He participated in the Senior High Youth Fellowship of the Community United Methodist Church. He is also a member of the Pickaway County Young Democrats.

While in DeMolay, Yeatts has received the Chevalier Award, the second highest honor that can be conferred on an individual. He is a Past Master Councilor of the Circleville Chapter and a past 20th District Chairman. He is presently serving the Ohio State Council as chairman of the DeMolay Relations and is a member of the Buckeye Priory.

Police Question Son Of Sam

NEW YORK (AP) — The questioning begins today, the psychiatrists quizzing an overweight, smiling postal clerk who reportedly has told police he killed six people and wounded seven on the command of a 6,000-year-old voice named "Sam" who spoke through a dog.

David Berkowitz, 24, an Army veteran who served in Korea, former auxiliary policeman and security guard, and lately a mail sorter in a Bronx post office, is not in a jail cell but in a heavily guarded room in the mental ward at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn, ordered there by a judge who said:

"I am of the opinion that the defendant may be incapacitated."

Judge Richard Brown of Brooklyn Criminal Court ordered the psychiatric tests Thursday as the suspect stood before him, saying nothing but "yes" when asked if his name was David Berkowitz. The half-smile that has flickered across his lips since his arrest reappeared.

Friends of Berkowitz say he had undergone a drastic personality transformation during his service in Korea by taking LSD. The Daily News reports today that this transformation was obvious in letters written to the unnamed friends.

They told the News that Berkowitz, formerly conservative and enthusiastic about the Army, began writing about acid trips and pacifism. They said he renounced Judaism and joined the Baptist Church upon his return from Korea.

Berkowitz has already undergone another sort of questioning, hours of grilling by the police on Thursday.

He has allegedly told police that he was the "Son of Sam," object of the most extensive manhunt in New York City history.

Officers also said he gave what one detective called a "blow-by-blow" description of his year-long murder spree.

"He's amazing," the detective said. "He seems to have total recall, correcting us on minor details here and there."

Police said Berkowitz also was able to answer questions about a letter left at the scene of a double murder last April 17. The note's contents had never been made public, but Berkowitz knew the letter was signed "The Monster" and had referred to "The Chubby Behemoth."

But police are still baffled at the motive for murder.

Although Berkowitz was quoted as persistently saying "I was commanded" when asked about each of the killings, he variously described his master as "a man who lived 6,000 years ago," the devil, or a Yonkers neighbor, Sam Carr.

Body Of Mystery Man That Of Nazi?

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — A mystery man's body lay unclaimed in an Asuncion police morgue today while West German officials tried to determine if he was alleged Nazi war criminal Eduard Roschmann.

If so, it would end a 30-year hunt for an elusive fugitive known as the "Butcher of Riga" who apparently stayed one step ahead of his trackers in South America in recent months.

The Nazi was accused of supervising the slaughter of 40,000 Jews and killing 50 of them himself as a concentration camp commander.

Paraguayan officials have refused to comment on the case. The West German embassy said one of its consuls was trying to make a positive identification of the body.

The first report that the dead man was Roschmann came Thursday from a local newspaper that said identity papers with a known Roschmann alias were found on the corpse.

Emilio Wolf, a local delicatessen owner who says he was imprisoned under Roschmann, has seen the body and says it is that of the former SS officer, who is believed to have fled to Argentina in 1948. Wolf said his parents and sister were executed at a Roschmann-run concentration camp.

But Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal said in Vienna Thursday that he does not believe Roschmann is dead. He said the German was spotted in Bolivia only last month.

"I got the messages through his dog," Berkowitz was quoted as saying. "He told me to kill."

Carr, 64, said he had told police last April that Berkowitz had shot his dog in the leg and more recently had told police he thought his neighbor might be the .44-caliber killer.

Carr said the shooting of the dog plus Berkowitz' likeness to one of the police sketches of the killer gave him a "gut feeling" Berkowitz was the man.

"I wonder who died for him?" asked Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish Documentation Center, an agency that keeps track of former Nazis.

The influential Paraguay newspaper ABC-Color said the 69-year-old Nazi died of a heart attack in a local hospital Wednesday afternoon and his body was later removed to the morgue.

ABC-Color said papers on the body bore the name Federico Wegener, a Roschmann alias, and that the body was missing two toes on one foot and three on another, apparently from war wounds.

Roschmann allegedly ran an extermination camp near Riga, Latvia, between 1941 and 1943, and is wanted by a West German court for "premeditated murder and racial hatred crimes."

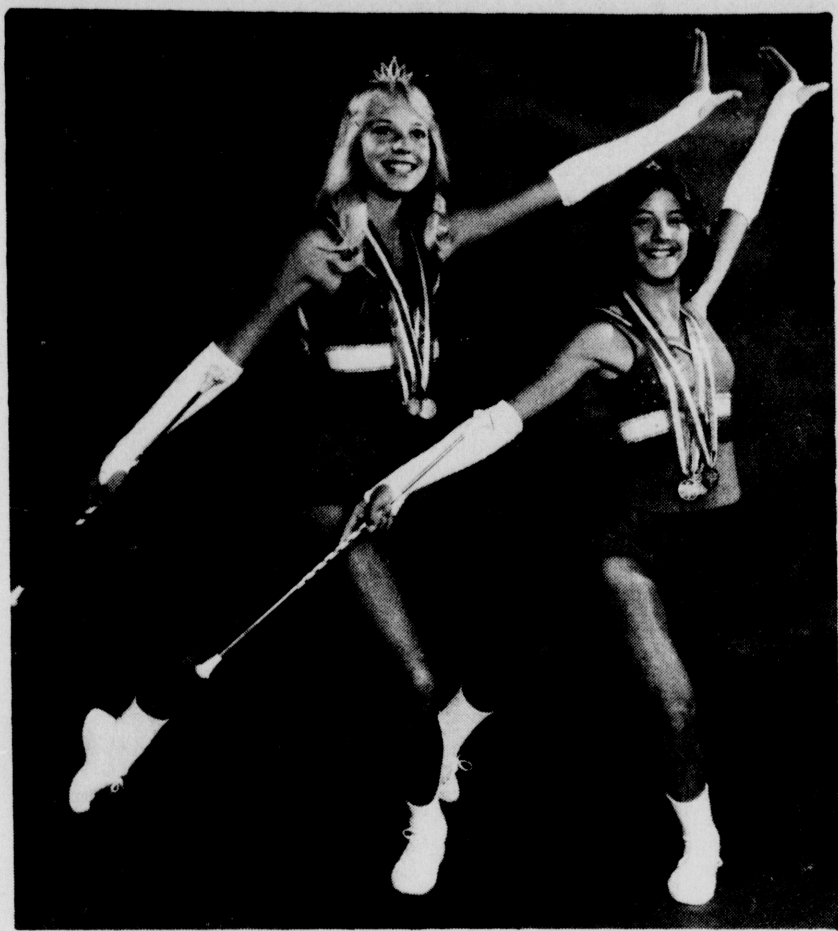

His notoriety made him one of the main characters in the novel "The Odessa File," Frederick Forsyth's best-seller about a secret organization that helped top Nazis escape Germany after World War II.

Although Berkowitz was quoted as persistently saying "I was commanded" when asked about each of the killings, he variously described his master as "a man who lived 6,000 years ago," the devil, or a Yonkers neighbor, Sam Carr.

"I got the messages through his dog," Berkowitz was quoted as saying. "He told me to kill."

Carr, 64, said he had told police last April that Berkowitz had shot his dog in the leg and more recently had told police he thought his neighbor might be the .44-caliber killer.

Carr said the shooting of the dog plus Berkowitz' likeness to one of the police sketches of the killer gave him a "gut feeling" Berkowitz was the man.

Body Of Mystery Man That Of Nazi?

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — A mystery man's body lay unclaimed in an Asuncion police morgue today while West German officials tried to determine if he was alleged Nazi war criminal Eduard Roschmann.

If so, it would end a 30-year hunt for an elusive fugitive known as the "Butcher of Riga" who apparently stayed one step ahead of his trackers in South America in recent months.

The Nazi was accused of supervising the slaughter of 40,000 Jews and killing 50 of them himself as a concentration camp commander.

Paraguayan officials have refused to comment on the case. The West German embassy said one of its consuls was trying to make a positive identification of the body.

The first report that the dead man was Roschmann came Thursday from a local newspaper that said identity papers with a known Roschmann alias were found on the corpse.

Emilio Wolf, a local delicatessen owner who says he was imprisoned under Roschmann, has seen the body and says it is that of the former SS officer, who is believed to have fled to Argentina in 1948. Wolf said his parents and sister were executed at a Roschmann-run concentration camp.

But Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal said in Vienna Thursday that he does not believe Roschmann is dead. He said the German was spotted in Bolivia only last month.

"I wonder who died for him?" asked Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish Documentation Center, an agency that keeps track of former Nazis.

The influential Paraguayan newspaper ABC-Color said the 69-year-old Nazi died of a heart attack in a local hospital Wednesday afternoon and his body was later removed to the morgue.

ABC-Color said papers on the body bore the name Federico Wegener, a Roschmann alias, and that the body was missing two toes on one foot and three on another, apparently from war wounds.

Roschmann allegedly ran an extermination camp near Riga, Latvia, between 1941 and 1943, and is wanted by a West German court for "premeditated murder and racial hatred crimes."

His notoriety made him one of the main characters in the novel "The Odessa File," Frederick Forsyth's best-seller about a secret organization that helped top Nazis escape Germany after World War II.

Strike Ends Too Late For Woman's Home

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Two days after it burned, Grace Grether still could look across a narrow brick alley from her kitchen and see wisps of smoke in the rubble of her four-unit apartment building that was destroyed early Tuesday during a 59-hour strike by Dayton firemen.

As the 65-year-old widow was shuffling through canceled checks and thumbing an expense journal Thursday trying to figure out how much the strike had cost her, she told of her bitterness.

"They came around about dark Wednesday night, though, once they'd gotten their petty little raise," Mrs. Grether said.

"They said they were checking to be sure the fire was really out. 'It's flat, can't you see that?' I told them."

She lives only three blocks from a fire house where strikers were walking picket lines while her investment burned.

"At least I still have my house," said

Mrs. Grether, sitting in her tidy 125-year-old house adding that her insurance won't cover the loss.

"I was so close to the firehouse I couldn't see insuring for a total loss."

Mrs. Grether wasn't alone in her loss while firemen were on strike for 59 hours. As many as 20 buildings were gutted and Red Cross officials reported nearly 30 persons were homeless in the city of 241,000.

Some 375 firemen walked off their jobs at 7 a.m. Monday after about eight months of talks with the city. When talks finally broke down about noon Tuesday, the firemen were asking that their work week be cut by two hours to 50 a week. They also wanted a 25-cent hourly raise. The city refused the hours demand and offered 18 cents more.

As talks remained stalled, firemen also began demanding amnesty from discipline for striking. They added binding arbitration to their demands.

Thursday afternoon, City Manager James Alloway had a change of heart. The city gave the firemen what they had demanded a day earlier.

Mayor James H. McGee denied pressuring Alloway to settle, but Alloway said he gave in on McGee's orders.

After the strike was settled Wednesday, McGee said the package given the firemen would not upset the city's current budget.

Meanwhile, some 400 Dayton policemen have authorized their leadership to strike. Police union officials said they do not expect a walkout, if one occurs, before Sunday. The union's executive committee members are at a Fraternal Order of Police convention in Rhode Island.

The city is offering an 18-cent hourly raise. The firemen got 25 cents. Before the firemen's strike, safety forces earned the same salary.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in the aftermath of Thursday's drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gave up more than 2 points in early trading.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was still feeling the effects of the latest Federal Reserve moves to tighten credit.

With short term interest rates rising, speculation mounted that the Fed might soon raise its discount rate—the charge it makes on loans to its member commercial banks.

Today's early prices included International Business Machines, off 1/2 at 265 1/2; General Telephone, down 1/2 at 32 1/2, and NL Industries, 1/2 lower at 19 1/2.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.61 to 877.43, wiping out Wednesday's 7.62-point gain and reaching a new 19-month low.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 21.74 million shares, up from 18.28 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .32 to 53.77.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .21 at 120.80.

Death Penalty Not Legal, ACLU Claims

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's death penalty is unconstitutional because the laws prescribing it are too narrow, the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio says in a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court.

The ACLU contends the laws do not really take into account factors such as youth, alcohol or drug intoxication, undue influence by others, mental or emotional abnormality, absence of prior criminal involvement, and cooperation with police.

"Contemporary standards of decency" require that courts and juries give attention to such mitigating factors, says the friend-of-court brief filed Thursday by Ohio State University criminal law professor Lawrence Herman.

The brief supports the appeal of Willie Lee Bell, who was convicted of the 1974 murder of elderly nursing home director Julius Graber in Hamilton County. Bell then was 16 years old.

The high court in June agreed to review his conviction to determine if the Ohio death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

The ACLU brief maintains Ohio statutes "violate due process of law and impose cruel and unusual punishment by placing on the defendant the burden of proving a mitigating factor."

Further, the brief says one statute "violates the right to trial by jury by totally precluding the jury from expressing an opinion whether, on the facts of a case as measured by standards of decency, the defendant deserves to live or die."

Finally, the ACLU said, the scope of review undertaken recently by the Ohio Supreme Court is inadequate "to insure that a death sentence is warranted by the facts of a particular case and is proportionate to sentences imposed in similar cases."

See Record Ohio Soybeans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A record soybean crop and a better than average corn crop have been forecast by the Ohio Crop Reporting Service.

"The hot weather did not hurt," OCRS's Homer Carter said.

"It did not last long enough and did not come at a critical time, for example, when corn is in the tassle stage. It hit just a little before, in early July. And the rains have been timely except in west central and extreme northwest."

The soybean crop should reach 105 million bushels, Carter said. That's a 12 per cent increase from last year's 94 million-bushel crop, and 3 million bushels above the record 102 million-bushel harvest of 1975.

The reason, Carter said, simply is acreage.

Ohio farmers have nearly 3.4 million acres in soybeans this year. That is one-half million acres more than last year, but 200,000 acres less than the record set in 1973. That year, however, "the yield was only 25 bushels per acre, so we ended up with a 90 million-bushel crop," Carter said.

"This year we are talking 31 bushels per acre yield. Last year it was a 32.5 bushel yield, and in 1975 it was 33 bushels per acre."

The acreage farmers put into soybeans came from corn, however, and that means only a 341 million-bushel corn crop this year. That will be 14 per cent below last year's record 396 million-bushel crop, but still the second largest in the state's history, Carter said.

Decreases are predicted both in corn yield, estimated at 91 bushels per acre, down from 101 bushels last year, and in

Court Orders New Threat Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Court of Appeals ordered a new trial for a Delphi man because the change of venue request during his original trial was dismissed without a hearing.

James A. Hyden had been sentenced to 1-10 years in jail on charges stemming from telephoned threats to the Carroll County Welfare Director John Walker.

Hyden admitted making one call, but said he just wanted to harass Walker, who was instrumental in placing James and Ruthie Hyden's new born triplets in a foster home for several months in 1973.

Corn Crop Dips

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Although it will still be the second largest in history, this year's corn crop will be 12 per cent lower than last year's record due to the midsummer drought and a higher state soybean production, a farm expert said.

Earl L. Park, U.S. Department of Agriculture statistician at Purdue University, said Hoosier farmers would harvest about 608 million bushels of corn, down from 1976's 691 total. The prediction has dropped 2 per cent during the past month due to high temperatures and dryness, Park said.

Steady prices and an excellent spring for soybean planting also caused many farmers to switch crops, he said. The result is an anticipated 18 per cent increase over last year's soybean production, to nearly 128 million bushels.

acreage, down 170,000 acres from the 3.9 million acres harvested last year.

Thursday's prediction raised the expected corn yield by six bushels per acre above the July forecast "mainly because of the good rainfall in most of the state and improved growing conditions," Carter said.

Farmers also have more than 1.5 million acres each in wheat and hay.

The wheat crop is expected to be more than 72 million bushels based on a yield of 47 bushels per acre.

"This will be one of the larger wheat crops. It's a tremendous year, but lower acreage will keep us from beating the record," Carter said.

The record was set in 1975 when a 42-bushel yield from 1.77 million acres produced a 74 million-bushel crop. Last year there were 150,000 more acres in wheat, but the lower 40 bushel yield produced a 66 million-bushel crop, he said.

The hay harvest this year is expected to yield just over two tons per acre for a 3.2 million-ton crop. Last year's 3.6 million-ton crop came from a 2.3-ton per acre yield on about the same acreage, Carter said.

There also are 410,000 acres in oats this year, some 90,000 acres less than last year. The estimated yield is 52 bushels per acre and a 21 million-bushel crop. Last year's harvest was 27.5 million bushels.

"One thing that hurt us was the dry weather in May," Carter said. "Last year we had 55 bushels per acre last year, and 61 bushels in 1975. This is not really a good oat crop at all."

Consumer Alert On Autos Issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Consumers were alerted Thursday to watch out for several thousand cars that Atty. Gen. William J. Brown claims were salvaged from the recent Johnstown, Pa. flood and brought into Ohio.

Brown said vehicles damaged in the flood may be sold as new or low mileage used cars. He urged prospective buyers to request a title search for 50 cents.

"Due to titling procedures in Ohio, car buyers will not be able to tell from the auto title if the vehicle has been salvaged," Brown said Thursday. He said salvaged autos entering Ohio are issued salvage titles and are cleaned and repaired by the dealer or other party purchasing the auto.

She lives only three blocks from a fire house where strikers were walking picket lines while her investment burned.

"At least I still have my house," said

Mrs. Grether, sitting in her tidy 125-year-old house adding that her insurance won't cover the loss.

"I was so close to the firehouse I couldn't see insuring for a total loss."

Mrs. Grether wasn't alone in her loss while firemen were on strike for 59 hours. As many as 20 buildings were gutted and Red Cross officials reported nearly 30 persons were homeless in the city of 241,000.

Some 375 firemen walked off their jobs at 7 a.m. Monday after about eight months of talks with the city. When talks finally broke down about noon Tuesday, the firemen were asking that their work week be cut by two hours to 50 a week. They also wanted a 25-cent hourly raise. The city refused the hours demand and offered 18 cents more.

As talks remained stalled, firemen also began demanding amnesty from discipline for striking. They added binding arbitration to their demands.

Thursday afternoon, City Manager James Alloway had a change of heart. The city gave the firemen what they had demanded a day earlier.

Mayor James H. McGee denied pressuring Alloway to settle, but Alloway said he gave in on McGee's orders.

After the strike was settled Wednesday, McGee said the package given the firemen would not upset the city's current budget.

Meanwhile, some 400 Dayton policemen have authorized their leadership to strike. Police union officials said they do not expect a walkout, if one occurs, before Sunday. The union's executive committee members are at a Fraternal Order of Police convention in Rhode Island.

The city is offering an 18-cent hourly raise. The firemen got 25 cents. Before the firemen's strike, safety forces earned the same salary.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in the aftermath of Thursday's drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gave up more than 2 points in early trading.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was still feeling the effects of the latest Federal Reserve moves to tighten credit.

With short term interest rates rising, speculation mounted that the Fed might soon raise its discount rate—the charge it makes on loans to its member commercial banks.

Today's early prices included International Business Machines, off 1/2 at 265 1/2; General Telephone, down 1/4 at 32 1/2, and NL Industries, 1/8 lower at 19 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.61 to 877.43, wiping out Wednesday's 7.62-point gain and reaching a new 19-month low.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 21.74 million shares, up from 18.28 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .32 to 53.77.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .21 at 120.80.

Death Penalty Not Legal, ACLU Claims

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's death penalty is unconstitutional because the laws prescribing it are too narrow, the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio says in a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court.

The ACLU contends the laws do not really take into account factors such as youth, alcohol or drug intoxication, undue influence by others, mental or emotional abnormality, absence of prior criminal involvement, and cooperation with police.

"Contemporary standards of decency" require that courts and juries give attention to such mitigating factors, says the friend-of-court brief filed Thursday by Ohio State University criminal law professor Lawrence Herman.

The brief supports the appeal of Willie Lee Bell, who was convicted of the 1974 murder of elderly nursing home director Julius Graber in Hamilton County. Bell then was 16 years old.

The high court in June agreed to review his conviction to determine if the Ohio death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

The ACLU brief maintains Ohio statutes "violate due process of law and impose cruel and unusual punishment by placing on the defendant the burden of proving a mitigating factor."

Further, the brief says one statute "violates the right to trial by jury by totally precluding the jury from expressing an opinion whether, on the facts of a case as measured by standards of decency, the defendant deserves to live or die."

Finally, the ACLU said, the scope of review undertaken recently by the Ohio Supreme Court is inadequate "to insure that a death sentence is warranted by the facts of a particular case and is proportionate to sentences imposed in similar cases."

See Record Ohio Soybeans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A record soybean crop and a better than average corn crop have been forecast by the Ohio Crop Reporting Service.

"The hot weather did not hurt," OCRS's Homer Carter said.

"It did not last long enough and did not come at a critical time, for example, when corn is in the tassle stage. It hit just a little before, in early July. And the rains have been timely except in west central and extreme northwest."

The soybean crop should reach 105 million bushels, Carter said. That's a 12 per cent increase from last year's 94 million-bushel crop, and 3 million bushels above the record 102 million-bushel record harvest of 1975.

The reason, Carter said, simply is acreage.

Ohio farmers have nearly 3.4 million acres in soybeans this year. That is one-half million acres more than last year, but 200,000 acres less than the record set in 1973. That year, however, "the yield was only 25 bushels per acre, so we ended up with a 90 million-bushel crop," Carter said.

"This year we are talking 31 bushels per acre yield. Last year it was a 32.5 bushel yield, and in 1975 it was 33 bushels per acre."

The acreage farmers put into soybeans came from corn, however, and that means only a 341 million-bushel corn crop this year. That will be 14 per cent below last year's record 396 million-bushel crop, but still the second largest in the state's history, Carter said.

Decreases are predicted both in corn yield, estimated at 91 bushels per acre, down from 101 bushels last year, and in

Court Orders

New Threat Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Court of Appeals ordered a new trial for a Delphi man because the change of venue request during his original trial was dismissed without a hearing.

James A. Hyden had been sentenced to 1-10 years in jail on charges stemming from telephoned threats to the Carroll County Welfare Director John Walker.

Hyden admitted making one call, but said he just wanted to harass Walker, who was instrumental in placing James and Ruthie Hyden's new born triplets in a foster home for several months in 1973.

Corn Crop Dips

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Although it will still be the second largest in history, this year's corn crop will be 12 per cent lower than last year's record due to the midsummer drought and a higher state soybean production, a farm expert said.

Earl L. Park, U.S. Department of Agriculture statistician at Purdue University, said Hoosier farmers would harvest about 608 million bushels of corn, down from 1976's 691 total. The prediction has dropped 2 per cent during the past month due to high temperatures and dryness, Park said.

Steady prices and an excellent spring for soybean planting also caused many farmers to switch crops, he said. The result is an anticipated 18 per cent increase over last year's soybean production, to nearly 128 million bushels.

Consumer Alert On Autos Issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Consumers were alerted Thursday to watch out for several thousand cars that Atty. Gen. William J. Brown claims were salvaged from the recent Johnstown, Pa. flood and brought into Ohio.

Brown said vehicles damaged in the flood may be sold as new or low mileage used cars. He urged prospective buyers to request a title search for 50 cents.

"Due to titling procedures in Ohio, car buyers will not be able to tell from the auto title if the vehicle has been salvaged," Brown said Thursday. He said salvaged autos entering Ohio are issued salvage titles and are cleaned and repaired by the dealer or other party purchasing the auto.

Rural Land Values Spiraling League Backs Bargaining Bill

By MICHAEL B. LAFFERTY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you think rural land prices of up to $3,000 per acre are high, stick around a few years.

A projection of recent national rates of increase indicates that little spread in the country could cost $33,535 per acre by the year 2000.

Agriculture economists don't expect land to cost that much at the turn of the century, but the example illustrates skyrocketing land values of the past four or five years.

In the past year farmland in Ohio has jumped 31 per cent in cost. The national rate is a hefty 16.5 per cent for the same period, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Richard D. Duvick of the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service says prices are being pushed up by farmers who have had several successive years of good income. Duvick, an agricultural economist, said many farmers are investing in farm land much as they would stocks and bonds.

The cost of large tracts of land is making it much more difficult for young farmers to get into farming unless they can buy into an existing operation or inherit a farm. At $2,000 per acre, a 500-acre farm would cost $1 million for land alone if the buyer paid cash. Interest charges for borrowed money shoots the price up.

However, Duvick said bumper crops could depress farm income and take the pressure off land values. Corn could easily fall below $2 per bushel in 1977, he added.

"Land values have about doubled in the last five years, so you would expect with only a couple of years of lower farm income the rate of increase has got to slow down," he said.

Duvick said land is selling in a range of from less than $1,000 to up to $3,000 per acre in Ohio, with the average about $1,131 per acre. Land is least expensive in the southeast and most expensive in the northwest.

Despite the net flow of population back to rural areas, Duvick said nonfarm purchasers haven't added much to inflation. He doesn't think nonfarm buying will be deterred by higher land values.

But he does have some hints for city folks who want to buy land, grow some tomatoes and raise a goat or two. Duvick thinks a reputable farm real estate agent will find suitable land faster than a person unfamiliar with the country.

If a person does decide to deal directly with an owner, at least the realtor's fee will be saved. But the property owner is better informed about the local market and is likely to ask top dollar for his land.

Grange News

GRANGE YOUTH
The Pickaway County Grange Youth met last Sunday at the Crites' farm, enjoying a potluck supper and softball.

Election of officers was held with the following results: president-Randy Wolfe, vice-president - Brenda Bolender, secretary - Joy Bidwell, treasurer - Layne Reichert, news reporter - Paul Dunkle, recreation - Mark Pfeiffer.

Plans for the state fair booth were finalized, and the fall installation team was set up. It was reported that several youth had cleaned the kitchen of the Grange and 4-H Building in July. It was decided to continue meetings on Sunday afternoons rather than in the evenings.

The next meeting will be at Layne Reichert's home at 1:30 p.m. on September 11.

Women Helping To Sell Records

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Record companies believe women can help sell records to males between 17-25, but some feminists here believe those same albums are a threat to women.

Women Against Violence Against Women of Indiana told a news conference here Tuesday that a nationwide consumer boycott is being launched against record albums depicting physical or sexual violence against women.

"Ads exploiting violence against women help to create a dangerous environment for women — one in which violence against women is encouraged and condoned," said Sandy Shaw. Warner, Electra and Atlantic records are the first boycott targets, she said.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Municipal League has endorsed the House version of a controversial bill allowing public employees a limited right to strike in support of demands for higher wages and better working conditions.

After having opposed several features of the bill in the Senate, where it originated, the league was successful in getting the House Commerce and Labor Committee to adopt a series of amendments.

One key change involved the option of employers, after fact finding, to allow strikes rather than be forced into compulsory binding arbitration to settle disputes involving police and firemen. The amendment lets them seek injunctions to halt a strike for a 60-day "cooling off" period.

Although many mayors and municipal officials had opposed the bill originally, the league apparently now believes the House version is the best they can get in terms of "balanced" legislation.

It said in a statement that the House measure represents "a reasonably well balanced bill giving neither unions nor employers total advantage over the other. In light of the changes made in the bill, the OML does support the measure as reported by the House Commerce and Labor Committee."

Many labor groups feel, however, that the House weakened the bill too much. Key differences remain over the measure, assigned to a Senate-House conference committee during the legislature's current recess until Sept. 19.

Twenty-five Republicans supported a House amendment that led to majority Democrats' initial victory in the big continuing partisan hassle over Ohio's new instant voter registration law.

But they did so unwittingly, in a manner that belied their years of legislative control and parliamentary savvy. "They were asleep," exclaimed one Democratic planner of the parliamentary maneuver.

It came when the House inserted an appropriation into the voter registration bill, with the announced motivation being to pay for the extra cost election day sign ups would mean for local election boards. The amendment showed fiscal responsibility, Democrats argued convincingly.

But the real purpose was to transform the measure from a regular, 90-day bill into an appropriations act, meaning it would take immediate effect, and could not be submitted to voters for a referendum.

Republicans, who claim the legislation will open Ohio's election process to widespread fraud, later claimed the appropriations amendment failed to transform the entire measure into an appropriations act. However, the Ohio Supreme Court, with Democrats prevailing on a 4-3 decision, said it did.

Subsequently, those against the law went another route, seeking to repeal the legislation with a constitutional amendment on the November ballot. But the 25 GOP House members had helped create the earlier problem as the appropriations amendment was approved by the House 85-12.

Rural Land Values Spiraling

By MICHAEL B. LAFFERTY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you think rural land prices of up to $3,000 per acre are high, stick around a few years.

A projection of recent national rates of increase indicates that little spread in the country could cost $33,535 per acre by the year 2000.

Agriculture economists don't expect land to cost that much at the turn of the century, but the example illustrates skyrocketing land values of the past four or five years.

In the past year farmland in Ohio has jumped 31 per cent in cost. The national rate is a hefty 16.5 per cent for the same period, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Richard D. Duvick of the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service says prices are being pushed up by farmers who have had several successive years of good income. Duvick, an agricultural economist, said many farmers are investing in farm land much as they would stocks and bonds.

The cost of large tracts of land is making it much more difficult for young farmers to get into farming unless they can buy into an existing operation or inherit a farm. At $2,000 per acre, a 500-acre farm would cost $1 million for land alone if the buyer paid cash. Interest charges for borrowed money shoots the price up.

However, Duvick said bumper crops could depress farm income and take the pressure off land values. Corn could easily fall below $2 per bushel in 1977, he added.

"Land values have about doubled in the last five years, so you would expect with only a couple of years of lower farm income the rate of increase has got to slow down," he said.

Duvick said land is selling in a range of from less than $1,000 to up to $3,000 per acre in Ohio, with the average about $1,131 per acre. Land is least expensive in the southeast and most expensive in the northwest.

Despite the net flow of population back to rural areas, Duvick said nonfarm purchasers haven't added much to inflation. He doesn't think nonfarm buying will be deterred by higher land values.

But he does have some hints for city folks who want to buy land, grow some tomatoes and raise a goat or two. Duvick thinks a reputable farm real estate agent will find suitable land faster than a person unfamiliar with the country.

If a person does decide to deal directly with an owner, at least the realtor's fee will be saved. But the property owner is better informed about the local market and is likely to ask top dollar for his land.

Grange News

GRANGE YOUTH

The Pickaway County Grange Youth met last Sunday at the Crites' farm, enjoying a potluck supper and softball.

Election of officers was held with the following results: president-Randy Wolfe, vice-president - Brenda Bolender, secretary - Joy Bidwell, treasurer - Layne Reichert, news reporter - Paul Dunkle, recreation - Mark Pfeiffer.

Plans for the state fair booth were finalized, and the fall installation team was set up. It was reported that several youth had cleaned the kitchen of the Grange and 4-H Building in July. It was decided to continue meetings on Sunday afternoons rather than in the evenings.

The next meeting will be at Layne Reichert's home at 1:30 p.m. on September 11.

Women Helping To Sell Records

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Record companies believe women can help sell records to males between 17-25, but some feminists here believe those same albums are a threat to women.

Women Against Violence Against Women of Indiana told a news conference here Tuesday that a nationwide consumer boycott is being launched against record albums depicting physical or sexual violence against women.

"Ads exploiting violence against women help to create a dangerous environment for women — one in which violence against women is encouraged and condoned," said Sandy Shaw. Warner, Electra and Atlantic records are the first boycott targets, she said.

VIKING TWIRLERS — Leading the Teays Valley High School Band at all football games, as well as parades and contests, will be a selected group of hard working girls. The 1977-1978 Viking Majorette Squad is composed of: front - Gale Warner, Janie Tigner, head majorette; and Denise Beers, alternate. Back row - Becky Kuhlwein, Molly Thornton, alternate; and Lorraine Hill. Another majorette, Cathy Shaw, was not available for the photo. They will be attending a camp at Rio Grande in August, along with the marching band.

League Backs Bargaining Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Municipal League has endorsed the House version of a controversial bill allowing public employees a limited right to strike in support of demands for higher wages and better working conditions.

After having opposed several features of the bill in the Senate, where it originated, the league was successful in getting the House Commerce and Labor Committee to adopt a series of amendments.

One key change involved the option of employers, after fact finding, to allow strikes rather than be forced into compulsory binding arbitration to settle disputes involving police and firemen. The amendment lets them seek injunctions to halt a strike for a 60-day "cooling off" period.

Although many mayors and municipal officials had opposed the bill originally, the league apparently now believes the House version is the best they can get in terms of "balanced" legislation.

It said in a statement that the House measure represents "a reasonably well balanced bill giving neither unions nor employers total advantage over the other. In light of the changes made in the bill, the OML does support the measure as reported by the House Commerce and Labor Committee."

Many labor groups feel, however, that the House weakened the bill too much. Key differences remain over the measure, assigned to a Senate-House conference committee during the legislature's current recess until Sept. 19.

Twenty-five Republicans supported a House amendment that led to majority Democrats' initial victory in the big continuing partisan hassle over Ohio's new instant voter registration law.

But they did so unwittingly, in a manner that belied their years of legislative control and parliamentary savvy. "They were asleep," exclaimed one Democratic planner of the parliamentary maneuver.

It came when the House inserted an appropriation into the voter registration bill, with the announced motivation being to pay for the extra cost election day sign ups would mean for local election boards. The amendment showed fiscal responsibility, Democrats argued convincingly.

But the real purpose was to transform the measure from a regular, 90-day bill into an appropriations act, meaning it would take immediate effect, and could not be submitted to voters for a referendum.

Republicans, who claim the legislation will open Ohio's election process to widespread fraud, later claimed the appropriations amendment failed to transform the entire measure into an appropriations act. However, the Ohio Supreme Court, with Democrats prevailing on a 4-3 decision, said it did.

Subsequently, those against the law went another route, seeking to repeal the legislation with a constitutional amendment on the November ballot. But the 25 GOP House members had helped create the earlier problem as the appropriations amendment was approved by the House 85-12.

A Page Of Opinion

Solar Optimism

Solar energy's potential continues to be the subject of debate, accepted by some as a major future energy source and belittled by others as little more than a minor auxiliary at best.

A new congressional study, prepared by the Office of Technology Assessment, comes down heavily on the optimistic side. Congress, in

The druggist locked his pharmacy and went to war. The people of New Haven knew him. They weren't surprised. Benedict Arnold was a man of impulses. He was too quick, too brave, too swift of tongue.

He was short and broad, a man with a rocking horse gait. His hair was black and thick; his eyes were as pale as a Ming vase. He left the shop to Mrs. Arnold and three sons, 7, 6, and 3. "The Connecticut militia needs me," he said, which was a statement and a farewell.

Arnold was a captain of militia in fact, is urged to add greater emphasis on solar energy in the administration's energy plan.

When compared with coal, the study acknowledges that solar energy cannot hope to compete for at least 20 years. But when compared with rising costs of electricity and natural gas, versus the expected drop in costs of solar equipment, solar energy could become competitive with conventional energy sources for heating and producing hot water in larger buildings as early as 1980.

Such predictions, coming from authoritative sources, will do nothing to discourage the still small, but growing, field of solar research and development.

Name Means Betrayal

By JIM BISHOP

April, 1775. He drilled his company up and down the state and taught them musketry and foraging. Then he met Ethan Allan. Together, they marched their combined forces up the lake country of New York and captured Fort Ticonderoga.

Benedict Arnold was a bona fide hero. So he quit the army and returned to New Haven. The drug store was failing. Mrs. Arnold had died a month before his return. He said he felt more sick than angry. He would remain at home with his sons.

The Continental Congress promoted

Arnold to full colonel. They also sent $800 in British pounds. The money was left for the care of the children. Arnold returned to battle. The Redcoats beat him at Quebec, but now they knew him and feared him.

He and his men built and bought ships all winter. In the summer of 1776, Benedict Arnold fought General Carlton so fiercely that, even though the British won the engagement, Carlton sent a message to Admiral Howe and General Burgoyne that he could not join them outside New York until he had regrouped his decimated regiments.

The Second Continental Congress feared Benedict Arnold almost as much as the British did. They promoted five of his juniors as generals and left him a colonel. General George Washington was angered at the slight, and said so. Congress said it already had two major generals from Connecticut.

Arnold quit again. General Washington begged him to return to his command. He did. The colonel fought two frenzied engagements with the British, and Congress commissioned him a major general - junior, however, to five others.

To keep an eye on this impetuous fighter, Congress ordered him to Philadelphia. He had fine lodgings, a flag, a sedentary command, and the embraces of the town flirt, Miss Margaret Shippen. The lady could do more to men with blue eyes over a fluttering fan than General Arnold could with a regiment.

He married her. The bride loved uniforms and whatever was inside them. Within six months, Arnold was desperately in debt. He was ordered to be court-martialed for using his post for private gain. Arnold despaired. He was sure he was caught in a triangulated vise between his wife, his Congress and General Washington.

Clinton sent a friendly letter to General Sir Henry Clinton in New York. A secret courier brought a friendlier response. Impetuously, he wrote that he was prepared to work for King and Parliament if he was given money, genuine recognition, and a commission in the British Army.

Clinton was cautious. He wanted proof of loyalty first. Benedict Arnold sent traitorous letters with information about the movements of the Continental Army, the command, supplies, weakness, and the strength of the French fleet sailing for the colonies.

The following summer, George Washington gave Arnold command of the plains at West Point. He surveyed the place, and sent a note to Clinton that he would betray the fort for $100,000 if he succeeded; $50,000 and a British commission if he didn't.

Clinton wanted the prize. He commissioned Major John Andre to get through the opposing lines and tell Arnold that the terms were satisfactory. The two met secretly. Benedict Arnold said that he would dispose his forces so that they could not fight well. He gave Andre the plans for West Point.

Andre carried them in his stocking. He was captured above Dobbs Ferry and hanged at a tavern in Tappan. Benedict Arnold fled in the night to General Clinton.

He was commissioned a British officer and fought against his old army up and down the coast. Arnold burned New London to the ground. He fought well for both sides.

In December, 1781, he sailed for England. He knew he was a hero. In London, military men saw him, heard his name, and spat. The King, another loser, gave Benedict Arnold $31,575 and land in Canada.

His drug store in New Haven was stoned. At 60, he died. He was bankrupt of money and, worse character . . .

Not all the experiments led to improved production. The introduction of weekly salary plans in lieu of hourly rates for some blue collar workers at companies such as Gillette and Polaroid seemed to increase absenteeism.

But the great majority of experiments led to gratifying improvements in the quality or quantity or value of work performed, and in many instances the improvements could be measured by the bottom line of the auditors' reports.

The significance for American industry can hardly be minimized, since improved productivity is the basis of material improvements in life.

It means that in an industrial world of jaded workers, the human factor sometimes is more challenging than the technological.

This has been especially true in the service industries, which are highly dependent on human rather than mechanical contributions. Productivity has lagged in such industries as health, and prices have soared.

Commenting on this, the authors - Raymond Katzell, Penney Bienstock and Paul Faerstein of New York University - note 20 of the reports deal with nonprofit organizations such as hospitals and nine with public agencies.

The Work in America Institute, Scarsdale, N.Y., was founded as a nonprofit organization in 1975 by Jerome M. Rosow, a former assistant secretary of labor, and is supported partially by government grants.

NEW YORK (AP) — A large air freight company suffered from lagging morale which was reflected in service, sales and profits. A "positive reinforcement" program was begun in an effort to correct the problem.

Under the program, employee performance was audited and productive behavior was encouraged by praise and recognition from managers, who were provided with detailed instruction on various kinds of reinforcement.

The results: sales rose; savings over a three-year period amounted to $3 million; standards of improved customer service were met 90 to 95 per cent of the time, compared with 30-40 per cent previously; container usage, desired by the company, rose from 45 per cent to 95 per cent.

This is one of 103 case studies assembled by the Work in America Institute in a book called "A Guide to Worker Productivity Experiments in the United States 1971-1975," a straightforward if unglamorous title.

Within the covers, though, are some spectacular examples of improved productivity, resulting in some instances from a mere pat on the back but more likely the consequence of common sense training programs and recognition of worker pride, responsibility and need to be involved.

At Bankers Trust Co. typists were employed at the repetitious task of recording the transfer of stock ownership after a sale or purchase. Monotony took its toll in errors and low levels of output.

Realizing the problem might be in the structure of the job rather than in the employees, the company began a job-enrichment program, which means simply that the one-dimensional task was restructured to include related work and more responsibility.

The typists responded. After six months, production rates rose 92 per cent in one section, more than 110 per cent in two others. No increase in errors resulted, even with the elimination of some checkers' jobs.

The huge rise in productivity wasn't the only result. With the work force reduced by the elimination of some checkers - made possible by permitting the typists to assume the responsibility they apparently craved - a saving of $300,000 a year was made.

All cases in the book are distilled from more detailed published reports, reduced in most instances to a page apiece of significant details: the organization, the number of workers involved, the program installed, the results.

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Is rainwater slightly acid, very acid, alkaline, or neutral?

This and 299 other questions are being asked dealers in water conditioning equipment as part of a consumer-protection program being conducted by the Water Quality Association. Those who pass the test will be permitted to call themselves "Certified Dealer."

As for rainwater, it's slightly acid.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

How important is the loss of weight for helping my high blood pressure? I am taking pills and I was told that this alone should do it.

Mr. H.P., Fla.

Dear Mr. P.: You did not mention "who" told you that pills were enough. As a matter of fact, there is much evidence that points out that well-regulated diet, reduction of weight and moderate exercise can reduce the blood pressure even without the use of drugs.

It is apparent, therefore, that such a regimen, coupled with the drugs, should have increasing advantages. Doctors who are interested in high blood pressure and preventive medicine believe that the ideal combination for the control of hypertension includes these factors of weight reduction: diet free from fats, limitation of salt intake, and the definite elimination of cigarette smoking.

Add to your drugs these sensible suggestions and the threat of high blood pressure can virtually be eliminated.

I am an alcoholic, I fell into the trap of drinking when I was 15 and didn't stop until last year at the age of 41. I'm now paying the penalty for my stupidity and have severe cirrhosis of the liver. What progress has been made with transplants of the liver? This seems to my only hope.

Mr. E.L.E., Miss.

Dear Mr. E.: It was once thought that transplants of the liver would never become a reality. Yet, despite all of the pessimism, liver transplant operations are now being performed all over the world.

The first operation was done at the University of Colorado Medical Center at Denver, in 1963. Since then, more than 125 such transplants have been performed in Denver alone, on people who, without it, would have little life expectancy.

A battery of tests is first performed to find out who is a good candidate for such an operation. With careful evaluation, and new techniques, the survival rate is increasing constantly.

As you know, alcohol now is one of the great threats to young people in high schools and in colleges. I hope that some of my young readers will take heed after reading about the unfortunate "penalty" you are now paying for years of uncontrolled drinking.

Great Lakes Officials Fight EPA

CLEVELAND (AP) — A large group of officials from cities bordering the Great Lakes was expected to be on hand Thursday "to plan a strategy how best to negate" the 15 per cent water use cutback proposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Al Ruksenas, from the office of Cleveland Utilities Director Raymond Kadukis, said the EPA's proposal would be in the form of an amendment to the Water Pollution Act of 1972 as a method of forcing water conservation.

"The problem with this," Ruksenas said, "is that this discriminates against the cities on the Great Lakes because we really are a water-rich area."

"If the EPA proposal becomes law, we will not only cut the water use by 15 per cent, but also the revenues we receive. That will force us to raise rates to maintain our services at the proper level," he added. "And we've been on the narrow edge for a long time under the current situation of unlimited water use."

Ruksenas said the meeting, called by Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk and Kadukis, will be used "to plan a strategy how best to negate the planned action by the EPA."

The meeting was expected to be attended by utility directors, water commissioners, city managers and some mayors.

School Case Continues

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) contends that segregation in Cincinnati public schools occurred as a result of biased school board decisions.

The charges were in response to written questions from the Cincinnati Board of Education stemming from the pending desegregation suit filed by the NAACP in 1974.

In that suit, NAACP attorneys blamed desegregation on board action involving school attendance zones, student assignments, school constructions, previous failures to desegregate and a desegregation plan.

Board lawyer John Lloyd Jr., answered the charges, saying "none of this is new. It's almost 'boiler plate' language used routinely in other desegregation suits."

Board attorneys had requested that NAACP lawyers outline exactly what the district did to segregate schools after claiming the NAACP attorneys had not provided enough information to prepare a defense.

A Page Of Opinion

Solar Optimism

Solar energy's potential continues to be the subject of debate, accepted by some as a major future energy source and belittled by others as little more than a minor auxiliary at best.

A new congressional study, prepared by the Office of Technology Assessment, comes down heavily on the optimistic side. Congress, in fact, is urged to add greater emphasis on solar energy in the administration's energy plan.

When compared with coal, the study acknowledges that solar energy cannot hope to compete for at least 20 years. But when compared with rising costs of electricity and natural gas, versus the expected drop in costs of solar equipment, solar energy could become competitive with conventional energy sources for heating and producing hot water in larger buildings as early as 1980.

Such predictions, coming from authoritative sources, will do nothing to discourage the still small, but growing, field of solar research and development.

Name Means Betrayal

By JIM BISHOP

The druggist locked his pharmacy and went to war. The people of New Haven knew him. They weren't surprised. Benedict Arnold was a man of impulses. He was too quick, too brave, too swift of tongue.

He was short and broad, a man with a rocking horse gait. His hair was black and thick; his eyes were as pale as a Ming vase. He left the shop to Mrs. Arnold and three sons, 7, 6, and 3. "The Connecticut militia needs me," he said, which was a statement and a farewell.

Arnold was a captain of militia in April, 1775. He drilled his company up and down the state and taught them musketry and foraging. Then he met Ethan Allan. Together, they marched their combined forces up the lake country of New York and captured Fort Ticonderoga.

Benedict Arnold was a bona fide hero. So he quit the army and returned to New Haven. The drug store was failing. Mrs. Arnold had died a month before his return. He said he felt more sick than angry. He would remain at home with his sons.

The Continental Congress promoted

Arnold to full colonel. They also sent $800 in British pounds. The money was left for the care of the children. Arnold returned to battle. The Redcoats beat him at Quebec, but now they knew him and feared him.

He and his men built and bought ships all winter. In the summer of 1776, Benedict Arnold fought General Carlton so fiercely that, even though the British won the engagement, Carlton sent a message to Admiral Howe and General Burgoyne that he could not join them outside New York until he had regrouped his decimated regiments.

The Second Continental Congress feared Benedict Arnold almost as much as the British did. They promoted five of his juniors as generals and left him a colonel. General George Washington was angered at the slight, and said so. Congress said it already had two major generals from Connecticut.

Arnold quit again. General Washington begged him to return to his command. He did. The colonel fought two frenzied engagements with the British, and Congress commissioned him a major general - junior, however, to five others.

To keep an eye on this impetuous fighter, Congress ordered him to Philadelphia. He had fine lodgings, a flag, a sedentary command, and the embraces of the town flirt, Miss Margaret Shippin. The lady could do more to men with blue eyes over a fluttering fan than General Arnold could with a regiment.

He married her. The bride loved uniforms and whatever was inside them. Within six months, Arnold was desperately in debt. He was ordered to be court-martialed for using his post for private gain. Arnold despaired. He was sure he was caught in a triangulated vise between his wife, his Congress and General Washington.

Arnold sent a friendly letter to General Sir Henry Clinton in New York. A secret courier brought a friendlier response. Impetuously, he wrote that he was prepared to work for King and Parliament if he was given money, genuine recognition, and a commission in the British Army.

Clinton was cautious. He wanted proof of loyalty first. Benedict Arnold sent traitorous letters with information about the movements of the Continental Army, the command, supplies, weakness, and the strength of the French fleet sailing for the colonies.

The following summer, George Washington gave Arnold command of the plains at West Point. He surveyed the place, and sent a note to Clinton that he would betray the fort for $100,000 if he succeeded; $50,000 and a British commission if he didn't.

Clinton wanted the prize. He commissioned Major John Andre to get through the opposing lines and tell Arnold that the terms were satisfactory. The two met secretly. Benedict Arnold said that he would dispose his forces so that they could not fight well. He gave Andre the plans for West Point.

Andre carried them in his stocking. He was captured above Dobbs Ferry and hanged at a tavern in Tappan. Benedict Arnold fled in the night to General Clinton.

He was commissioned a British officer and fought against his old army up and down the coast. Arnold burned New London to the ground. He fought well for both sides.

In December, 1781, he sailed for England. He knew he was a hero. In London, military men saw him, heard his name, and spat. The King, another loser, gave Benedict Arnold $31,575 and land in Canada.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1977. There are 141 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War was signed after hostilities lasting three months and 22 days.

On this date:

In 1851, Isaac Singer of Pittstown, N.Y., was granted a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at sea to draft the Atlantic Charter.

In 1959, token school integration began in Little Rock, Ark., as six black students enrolled in formerly all-white schools.

In 1965, the Senate voted to give cities a voice in the cabinet by creating a Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In 1970, West Germany and the Soviet Union signed a nonaggression pact in Moscow and hailed the accord as marking a new era in their relations.

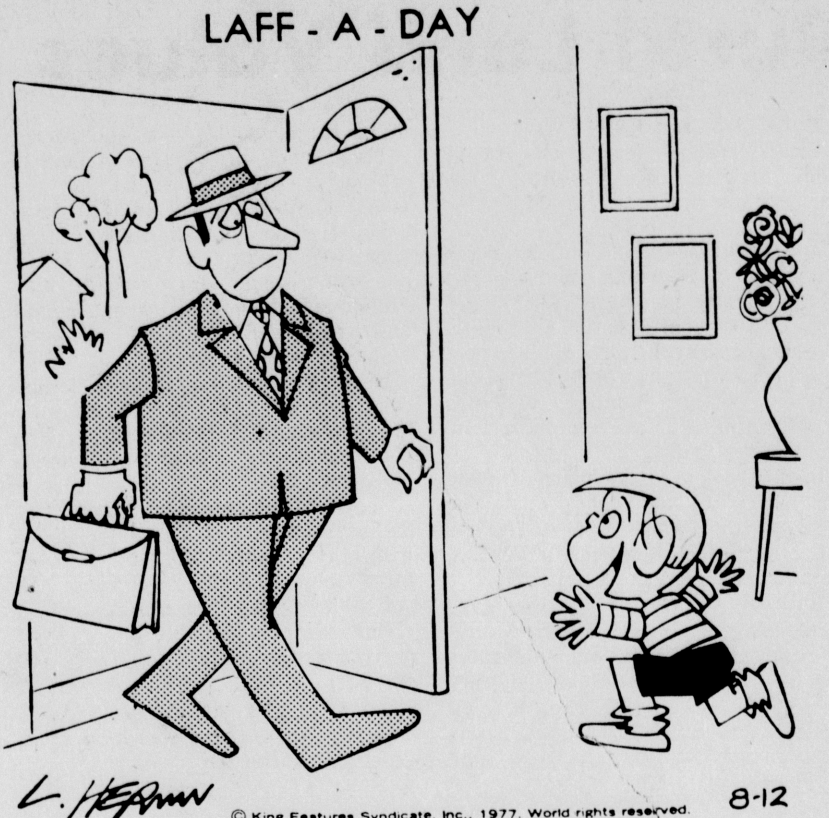

Ten years ago: Pope Paul VI created new posts for bishops at the Vatican, giving the prelates from around the world a wider voice in shaping Roman Catholic policy.

Five years ago: The United States was ending its ground combat role in Vietnam with the withdrawal of the last unit of the 21st Infantry Division from Da Nang.

One year ago: Right-wing Christians in Lebanon announced that they had captured the Palestinian camp of Tell Zaatar after a one-month siege.

Today's birthdays: Actor John Derek is 51 years old. Singer Buck Owens is 48.

Thought for today: Laws do not govern. Lawyers do — anonymous.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

How important is the loss of weight for helping my high blood pressure? I am taking pills and I was told that this alone should do it.

Mr. H.P., Fla.

You did not mention "who" told you that pills were enough. As a matter of fact, there is much evidence that points out that well-regulated diet, reduction of weight and moderate exercise can reduce the blood pressure even without the use of drugs.

It is apparent, therefore, that such a regimen, coupled with the drugs, should have increasing advantages. Doctors who are interested in high blood pressure and preventive medicine believe that the ideal combination for the control of hypertension includes these factors of weight reduction: diet free from fats, limitation of salt intake, and the definite elimination of cigarette smoking.

Add to your drugs these sensible suggestions and the threat of high blood pressure can virtually be eliminated.

I am an alcoholic, I fell into the trap of drinking when I was 15 and didn't stop until last year at the age of 41. I'm now paying the penalty for my stupidity and have severe cirrhosis of the liver. What progress has been made with transplants of the liver? This seems to my only hope.

Mr. E.L.E., Miss.

It was once thought that transplants of the liver would never become a reality. Yet, despite all of the pessimism, liver transplant operations are now being performed all over the world.

The first operation was done at the University of Colorado Medical Center at Denver, in 1963. Since then, more than 125 such transplants have been performed in Denver alone, on people who, without it, would have little life expectancy.

A battery of tests is first performed to find out who is a good candidate for such an operation. With careful evaluation, and new techniques, the survival rate is increasing constantly.

As you know, alcohol now is one of the great threats to young people in high schools and in colleges. I hope that some of my young readers will take heed after reading about the unfortunate "penalty" you are now paying for years of uncontrolled drinking.

No Swelled Head For Jimmy Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — They all wonder, some out loud: Has he gotten a swelled head? Apart from his hat size, has he changed? How?

After all, he's the President now.

Jimmy Carter's home folks ask each other about these things. And they compare notes:

His hair is getting grayer. He looks a little older. He awes people. He has a lot less time to do personal things for his friends. He doesn't come around much anymore. And he looks very serious these days.

But a swelled head?

"His head don't swell," muttered Rachel Clark the other day, during the President's third visit home. She gave the suggestion a disdainful shrug.

Her 87 years go back to Jimmy Carter's childhood, when he was 7 or 8 years old and she went to work for his daddy and Miss Lillian.

Rachel Clark was Jimmy Carter's black mammy.

"He never had to be whipped," she remembered. "I never had to get mad with Jimmy Carter. And I was one to get mad if need be. Jimmy's always been a good boy. Still is. He don't get no swelled head."

But one thing about Jimmy Carter has changed.

He can't go see her anymore without bringing a gang of Secret Service agents and reporters and other hangers-on and creating a general ruckus.

"He told me, 'I can't get around much,'" she said. "And then he told me, 'But I want to see you. So you come out here and see me.'"

She pointed to Main Street in front of the Plains pharmacy.

There, in the street, is where he sees her now, every time he comes back to town. There, in the street, in front of the reporters and the Secret Service agents and the tourists, is where he always gives her a big hug.

Jerry Wallace Back On Singing Rampage

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Wallace, a smooth singer whose career plunged because he couldn't record for two years, is back with a new image, a new hair color and a renewed zest for performing.

Wallace, best known for popcountry hits like "Primrose Lane," "In the Misty Moonlight" and "To Get to You," did not record for the past two years because of a contract dispute with former associates.

The dispute has been settled and he's released his first single since 1975, "I Miss You Already," which has been steadily climbing the country charts.

"It almost ruined my career," Wallace said about the litigation. "My income dropped $2,000-$3,000 a night. But now I'm ready to go. I feel like I'm singing better now than I ever have."

"People have told me I get better as I get older. I've had people tell me I'll be singing when I'm 80."

The most striking part of the new image is his appearance. His once brown hair is now silver and his weight has dropped from 210 to 185. Additionally, his nickname "Mr. Smooth" is being touted in all his publicity.

"I like it; it's a good tag," said Wallace, 46.

Probably only Elvis Presley has had more success than Wallace at three cultures of music: rock, pop and country.

Wallace began as a rock 'n' roll singer 20 years ago and made numerous appearances on "American Bandstand" with Dick Clark. He evolved into a pop-country singer like Eddy Arnold, Jim Reeves and Ray Price.

"My forte is ballads," said Wallace, who lives near Los Angeles. "I love to sing a good story so I like to talk about love; if it wasn't for women, I wouldn't have to talk about love; if it wasn't for women, I wouldn't have hits; they are the ones who buy the records."

"You've got to structure a song to excite a woman — romance a woman. Men forget to romance their wives. In these songs, women hear from the songs what they are not getting from their husband."

Ironically, he's had two failed marriages. "Love has eluded me," he said. "I've always concentrated so much on my music."

His hard work has paid off. "Primrose Lane" sold 1.6 million and he estimates he's had 10 others that sold 500,000. His other hits include "If You Leave Me Tonight I'll Cry," "Shutters & Boards," "Sound of Goodbye," "My Wife's House," "Comin' Home to You," "Georgia Rain," "Do You Know What It's Like to Be Lonesome," "Don't Give Up On Me," "I Wonder Whose Baby (You Are Now)" and "Wanted Man."

Old Couple Wins Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Frank B. Williams, who drew for her husband in Columbus, says the $55,000 she won in Thursday's Ohio Lottery drawing comes at a good time.

"The car has almost stopped running and the house needs painting and carpentry work," said the 77-year-old Helen Williams, who participated in place of her husband who was ill Thursday night.

Her husband is a 77-year-old retired Columbus water department employee. The couple has no children.

Mrs. Williams said some of the money will be donated to charity. She will return next week to compete against five other semifinalists.

Other winners were Evelyn Berling of Cincinnati, $9,900; Jeffrey L. Brant of Portsmouth, $9,100; George W. Myers of Toledo, $8,500; Meyer M. Klein of Cincinnati, $7,800, and Jack M. Connolly of Urbana, $6,200.

Last week Klein won $80,000 in the drawing.

The earth's center is almost 4,000 miles beneath the land surface. Man has only drilled 6 miles into the earth.

Laura Keene, producer of "Our American Cousins" at the Ford Theater in Washington the night that Lincoln was assassinated, was the first woman to be a manager in the American Theater.

Woman Cleared Of Racial Bias

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — An elderly Fort Wayne woman was cleared of racial discrimination charges for the second time Tuesday by an all white U.S. District Court jury.

The Fort Wayne Metropolitan Human Relations Commission filed suit against Thelma Penningroth, 72, after she allegedly refused to rent an apartment to Timothy M. Davis because he was black. The suit sought $57,000 in damages.

Last December, a jury also found her innocent of the charge, but U.S. District Judge Jesse Eschbach overturned the jury in February saying the evidence did not support the verdict.

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information on any question presented in this column, or having any questions concerning the benefits of the Veterans Administration should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 South Court Street.

(Q.) Last semester I received a GI Bill educational allowance. I dropped out of school in the middle of the term and then received two checks to which I was not entitled. I have received several notices to repay this debt. As I plan to resume training sometime in the future, can I defer payment until then?

(A.) No. The indebtedness will have to be liquidated.

(Q.) Is space - available travel abroad military aircraft open to veterans rated 100 per cent disabled from service connected causes?

(A.) No. I am sorry, it is not.

(Q.) Can I change the beneficiary of my National Service Life Insurance policy by designating a new beneficiary in my last will and testament?

(A.) No. Your request for a change in beneficiary should be sent to the VA insurance center where your premiums are paid.

(Q.) I am a military retiree. I wish to be buried at the national cemetery near my home. To be sure that a gravesite will be available when I die, may I make a reservation?

(A.) No. Reservations are not accepted.

(Q.) I am a full-time college student who receives Chapter 35 educational benefits. If I marry before I receive my degree, will my eligibility for the program end?

(A.) No, as long as you complete your studies before you reach age 26.

Local Man In Instant Lottery

Included in the grand prize top drawing of the Ohio Instant Lottery is David I. Smith of 525 E. Franklin St.

All $2, $5, and $10 winners in the Ohio Lottery Instant Game were put into a drawing, with 300 names drawn.

Results will be finalized Aug. 25 for the top ten winners and Sept. 8 for the final drawing. It will be held in Cleveland on the Thursday-television show.

Prizes range from $100 per week for life with a guarantee of $1 million, several intermediate prizes, down to 290 $100 each winners.

Michigan City Firemen Return

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Michigan City firemen are back on the job today, but their Terre Haute counterparts are still walking picket lines despite a court injunction ordering them back to work.

The Michigan City strike ended after three hours when firemen's representatives agreed to accept the city's offer of a five per cent raise in the $10,500 annual base pay. They were seeking a 10 per cent hike. In return, the city council promised to approve a collective bargaining ordinance for the firefighters.

A wage dispute has now kept Terre Haute firefighters off the job for three days. The men voted Tuesday night to ignore Vigo Superior Court Judge Harold J. Bitzegaio's back-to-work order.

Entertainment On Tap In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Everybody that is anybody and a good part of the rest of Ohio's population is expected at the state's greatest show — the State Fair — opening a 12-day run here Aug. 16.

The State Fair, which claims to attract upwards of two million visitors annually, will have competition from 16 county fairs next week; all part of the summer fun available to families looking for something to do and a place to go.

There is a host of other summer entertainment offered during the week the length and breadth of Ohio.

County fairs for the week include Allen, Ashtabula, Clermont, Darke, Defiance, Erie, Henry, Holmes, Huron, Logan, Meigs, Mercer, Miami, Muskingum, Richland and Union counties.

Following lists, by dates, some of other entertainment around Ohio during the coming week:

Aug. 14 — Salt Forks Arts & Crafts festival ends a three-day run at Cambridge.

Aug. 14 — Founders Days '77 ends three-day show at Springdale.

Aug. 14 — A 19th Century Popular Music program is at Ohio Historic Village, Columbus.

Aug. 14 — Arthur Fiedler conducts Cleveland Orchestra at Blossom Music Center near Akron-Cleveland.

There, in the street, is where he sees her now, every time he comes back to town. There, in the street, in front of the reporters and the Secret Service agents and the tourists, is where he always gives her a big hug.

Jerry Wallace Back On Singing Rampage

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Wallace, a smooth singer whose career plunged because he couldn't record for two years, is back with a new image, a new hair color and a renewed zest for performing.

Wallace, best known for popcountry hits like "Primrose Lane," "In the Misty Moonlight" and "To Get to You," did not record for the past two years because of a contract dispute with former associates.

The dispute has been settled and he's released his first single since 1975, "I Miss You Already," which has been steadily climbing the country charts.

"It almost ruined my career," Wallace said about the litigation. "My income dropped $2,000-$3,000 a night. But now I'm ready to go. I feel like I'm singing better now than I ever have."

"People have told me I get better as I get older. I've had people tell me I'll be singing when I'm 80."

The most striking part of the new image is his appearance. His once brown hair is now silver and his weight has dropped from 210 to 185. Additionally, his nickname "Mr. Smooth" is being touted in all his publicity.

"I like it; it's a good tag," said Wallace, 46.

Probably only Elvis Presley has had more success than Wallace at three cultures of music: rock, pop and country.

Wallace began as a rock 'n' roll singer 20 years ago and made numerous appearances on "American Bandstand" with Dick Clark. He evolved into a pop-country singer like Eddy Arnold, Jim Reeves and Ray Price.

"My forte is ballads," said Wallace, who lives near Los Angeles. "I love to sing a good story so I like to talk about love; if it wasn't for women, I wouldn't have to talk about love; if it wasn't for women, I wouldn't have hits; they are the ones who buy the records."

"You've got to structure a song to excite a woman — romance a woman. Men forget to romance their wives. In these songs, women hear from the songs what they are not getting from their husband."

Ironically, he's had two failed marriages. "Love has eluded me," he said. "I've always concentrated so much on my music."

His hard work has paid off. "Primrose Lane" sold 1.6 million and he estimates he's had 10 others that sold 500,000. His other hits include "If You Leave Me Tonight I'll Cry," "Shutters & Boards," "Sound of Goodbye," "My Wife's House," "Comin' Home to You," "Georgia Rain," "Do You Know What It's Like to Be Lonesome," "Don't Give Up On Me," "I Wonder Whose Baby (You Are Now)" and "Wanted Man."

Other winners were Evelyn Berling of Cincinnati, $9,900; Jeffrey L. Brant of Portsmouth, $9,100; George W. Myers of Toledo, $8,500; Meyer M. Klein of Cincinnati, $7,800, and Jack M. Connolly of Urbana, $6,200.

Last week Klein won $80,000 in the drawing.

The earth's center is almost 4,000 miles beneath the land surface. Man has only drilled 6 miles into the earth.

Laura Keene, producer of "Our American Cousins" at the Ford Theater in Washington the night that Lincoln was assassinated, was the first woman to be a manager in the American Theater.

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information on any question presented in this column, or having any questions concerning the benefits of the Veterans Administration should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 South Court Street.

(Q.) Last semester I received a GI Bill educational allowance. I dropped out of school in the middle of the term and then received two checks to which I was not entitled. I have received several notices to repay this debt. As I plan to resume training sometime in the future, can I defer payment until then?

(A.) No. The indebtedness will have to be liquidated.

(Q.) Is space - available travel abroad military aircraft open to veterans rated 100 per cent disabled from service connected causes?

(A.) No. I am sorry, it is not.

(Q.) Can I change the beneficiary of my National Service Life Insurance policy by designating a new beneficiary in my last will and testament?

(A.) No. Your request for a change in beneficiary should be sent to the VA insurance center where your premiums are paid.

(Q.) I am a military retiree. I wish to be buried at the national cemetery near my home. To be sure that a gravesite will be available when I die, may I make a reservation?

(A.) No. Reservations are not accepted.

(Q.) I am a full-time college student who receives Chapter 35 educational benefits. If I marry before I receive my degree, will my eligibility for the program end?

(A.) No, as long as you complete your studies before you reach age 26.

Michigan City Firemen Return

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Michigan City firemen are back on the job today, but their Terre Haute counterparts are still walking picket lines despite a court injunction ordering them back to work.

The Michigan City strike ended after three hours when firemen's representatives agreed to accept the city's offer of a five per cent raise in the $10,500 annual base pay. They were seeking a 10 per cent hike. In return, the city council promised to approve a collective bargaining ordinance for the firefighters.

A wage dispute has now kept Terre Haute firefighters off the job for three days. The men voted Tuesday night to ignore Vigo Superior Court Judge Harold J. Bitzegaio's back-to-work order.

NEW OVEN BEEF STEW

You can bake this ahead and reheat on the range.

1 3/4 pounds (scant) stewing beef chuck (about 1 1/2-inch cubes)
3 tablespoons corn or peanut oil
12 small onions
3 medium carrots, pared and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
1/2 pound snap beans, tipped and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
Several sprigs parsley, minced
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 cups water
8-ounce can or 1 cup homemade tomato sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1 bay leaf

Brown the beef in the hot oil and layer it with the onions, carrots, beans, parsley and garlic in a 2 1/2 to 3-quart casserole. Stir together the remaining ingredients and add. Cover tightly and bake in a 350-degree oven until beef is very tender — 1 3/4 hours. Let stand at room temperature, tightly covered, for 10 to 20 minutes before serving. If desired, skim some of the fat from the top. Makes 6 servings.

If you shred cabbage it is important to remember not to leave it exposed to air.

Should Bachelors Have Their 'Day'?

DEAR ABBY: We have a Mother's Day and a Father's Day, why not officially declare a day to honor bachelors?

The great historian and philosopher, Will Durant, compiled a list of the ten men he rated as having the sharpest minds of all time. Among them were Plato, Isaac Newton, Voltaire, Immanuel Kant, Leonardo da Vinci and St. Thomas Aquinas, all of whom were bachelors!

Two of the world's greatest musicians—Beethoven and Brahms. Oddly enough, the musician who was said to have been the greatest ladies' man of them all was Richard Wagner—a married man! Let's hear it for bachelors!

ED IN RICHMOND

DEAR ED: Why not? But two bachelors DID make it big in politics: James Buchanan, our 16th president, and Jerry Brown, California's governor.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a non-smoking guy going with a beautiful redhead whose breath smells like smoldering tires. This gal really turns me on, but her breath turns me off.

How do other guys handle this situation? Don't tell me to take up smoking so I won't notice her breath. I was a three-pack-a-day man until my brother developed lung cancer, and that cured me.

Answer soon. I want to marry this girl, but wonder how to handle this one major problem.

TIMID TIM

DEAR TIM: Try the direct approach. If that doesn't work, the ball is in your court again, and only you can decide if you want this beautiful redhead whose breath turns you off.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from STUMPED whose fiancée suddenly developed the fear of driving, so now she complains because she must do all the driving, which will limit her social life! Ha! What a wonderful helpmate she is. My condolences to the man who's stuck with her. I wonder what she would have done in my place.

Twenty-five years ago, my husband also "lost his nerve" about driving, and rather than see him risk his life

Metzenbaum Raps Energy Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, used the remaining hours before his departure to the Peoples Republic of China to announce his opposition to President Carter's energy proposal.

"I will oppose actively and vigorously a six-cent tax on gasoline" which would result from the proposed wellhead tax on crude oil, Metzenbaum said at a press conference Thursday.

"A wellhead tax will raise $13 billion a year, but the manner and procedure of getting it back to the people is not clear," he said.

The President's plan "will not save gas and energy to the degree that it is worth the $85 billion it would cost" over the next five years. "It will result in the saving of 25,000 barrels of oil a day, but that is insignificant when you consider we use 17 million barrels a day."

He said he favors energy conservation but "you can't do it by pricing the product out of the market place."

Metzenbaum said the President's program would "increase unemployment and add to the inflationary spiral. I support the President in the objective of saving energy, but not by increasing the price of gasoline and natural gas."

As for his trip to China, "My bags are packed. I'm excited and enthused."

The senator noted his visit will be the first by a high U.S. official since the return to power of vice premier Teng Hsiao-ping. But Metzenbaum said he sees the trip as a chance to learn personally how the Chinese live.

"I am not carrying any messages to China," Metzenbaum said hours before his departure from Columbus.

"I have been briefed. I have been in touch with the State Department. And I will meet with some Chinese officials. But I do not consider myself a high-level spokesman for the United States."

The senator said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will also visit China while he is there.

Metzenbaum said he hopes to meet with Vance and with Leonard Woodcock, U.S. Ambassador to China. But he said he has not "sought out top (Chinese) officials."

"I am more interested in the human interest things," Metzenbaum said. "I want to meet with doctors and walk barefoot in the fields with the farmers. I want to learn more about China for myself."

Metzenbaum said he is paying for the trip. He said he would fly to Chicago to meet his wife Shirley and then to Los Angeles where they would be joined by their daughter Shelley, who speaks Chinese.

Metzenbaum will visit Peking, Shanghai, Kwang Chow and Hang Chow. Side trips still are being arranged, an aide said. The senator will return to the United States on Sept. 3.

Rhodes Makes Appointments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven appointments to agencies and advisory councils were announced Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

They are:
—William H. Fellows, owner and operator of an Akron management consulting firm, reappointed to the Energy and Resource Development Agency for five years.

—Michael J. Guralnick of Columbus, director of Nisonger Center at Ohio State University, to the Development Disabilities State Planning Council succeeding Dr. William Gibson who resigned.

—Bill J. Poling, director of parks and recreation in Worthington, named to the Parks and Recreation Council, succeeding Ardath H. Lynch who resigned.

—Miles L. Waggoner, administrator of Marion General Hospital, named to the advisory council to the board of nursing education and nurse registration, succeeding Richard J. Murray.

—Louada M. Morgan, assistant to the director of counseling and testing at Muskingum College; Emory L. Leverett, assistant Toledo schools superintendent and Barbara J. Rice of Dayton, reappointed to the Special Education Advisory Council.

5,000 Inmates Paroled In Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 5,000 prison inmates were paroled in fiscal 1977, the most for any year since the Adult Parole Authority was established in 1965, the director of the APA reported Thursday.

John V. Shoemaker said 5,028 prisoners were released between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977. He attributed the increase to a revision in procedures to speed up the release of nondangerous offenders.

he said he has not "sought out top (Chinese) officials."

"I am more interested in the human interest things," Metzenbaum said. "I want to meet with doctors and walk barefoot in the fields with the farmers. I want to learn more about China for myself."

Metzenbaum said he is paying for the trip. He said he would fly to Chicago to meet his wife Shirley and then to Los Angeles where they would be joined by their daughter Shelley, who speaks Chinese.

Metzenbaum will visit Peking, Shanghai, Kwang Chow and Hang Chow. Side trips still are being arranged, an aide said. The senator will return to the United States on Sept. 3.

Rhodes Makes

Appointments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven appointments to agencies and advisory councils were announced Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

They are:
—William H. Fellows, owner and operator of an Akron management consulting firm, reappointed to the Energy and Resource Development Agency for five years.

—Michael J. Guralnick of Columbus, director of Nisonger Center at Ohio State University, to the Development Disabilities State Planning Council succeeding Dr. William Gibson who resigned.

—Bill J. Poling, director of parks and recreation in Worthington, named to the Parks and Recreation Council, succeeding Ardath H. Lynch who resigned.

—Miles L. Waggoner, administrator of Marion General Hospital, named to the advisory council to the board of nursing education and nurse registration, succeeding Richard J. Murray.

—Louada M. Morgan, assistant to the director of counseling and testing at Muskingum College; Emory L. Leverett, assistant Toledo schools superintendent and Barbara J. Rice of Dayton, reappointed to the Special Education Advisory Council.

5,000 Inmates

Paroled In Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 5,000 prison inmates were paroled in fiscal 1977, the most for any year since the Adult Parole Authority was established in 1965, the director of the APA reported Thursday.

John V. Shoemaker said 5,028 prisoners were released between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977. He attributed the increase to a revision in procedures to speed up the release of nondangerous offenders.

Past State Leader Will Speak To Local Legion

Robert Klipstine, Past Commander of the American Legion, department of Ohio, will be the speaker at the installation of 1978 officers at the Hall-Adkins Post 134 this Saturday evening.

ROBERT L. KLIPSTINE

A prime rib dinner and cocktail hour will proceed the installation and a dance will follow.

Post 134 officers to be installed include: John Icenhour, Commander; Betty Kurtz, 1st Vice Commander; Ronald Easter, 2nd Vice Commander; David Cupp, Adjutant; Richard Blaney, Finance Officer; Asa Robinson, Chaplain; Gene Dilley, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Executive Committee members Harold Hill,

Davidson Will Head Fire Benefit

CINCINNATI (AP) — Singer John Davidson, the headliner the night that a fire killed 164 persons at the Beverly Hills Supper Club, will top a list of big name entertainers in a benefit here Sept. 15 for the children of the victims.

Meanwhile, damage suits filed in connection with the May 28 disaster at Southgate, Ky. topped the $1 billion mark.

Other entertainers who have confirmed they will appear at the benefit in Cincinnati's Riverfront Coliseum include Robert Goulet, Joey Heatherton and the Van Dells.

"We wanted to do something. There are a lot of the children who are going to need help and we hope we can help them in some small way," said Byron C. Edmonds, a bartender at the club and president of the Beverly Hills Memorial Fund, Inc.

Edmonds said attorneys will draw up special guidelines for distribution on the basis of need.

Davidson, who has refused to discuss the fire since the disaster, was a willing volunteer, Edmonds said.

"He said he wants to do whatever he can to help," Edmonds added.

Another suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court at Covington, Ky., seeks $200 million for the estates of Dorothy V. Wilson Polley and George C. Polley of Ironton, Ohio.

Named as defendants, as in previous suits, were 4-R Corp., Richard J. Schilling and his three sons, architect William Roeding, The City of Southgate and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Fifteen suits have been filed in Campbell County Circuit Court and 23 in federal court.

James Price, Glenn Cook, George Brown, Ermil Stonerock, Gary Morris, and Ron Carpenter.

The event will be held at the post home on U.S. Route 23 south of Circleville, and is open to members and their guests. Reservations may be made by calling the post home.

Klipstine is from West Milton, Ohio, and is the immediate past commander of the Ohio American Legion.

Klipstine is a veteran of World War II, having served in the South Pacific theatre with the United States Marines for four years. He is also a life member of the Gingsrich-Poince Post in West Milton, having served as commander of that post for two years, and is a past commander of the Ohio Legion's Third District.

Klipstine and his wife Nancy are the parents of two daughters.

Prince Production

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold Prince, one of the most successful directors and producers of American theater will stage Puccini's opera "Girl of the Golden West" during the Lyric Opera of Chicago's 1978 season, company officials said.

Prince will stage the opera in cooperation with conductor Bruno Bartoletti. The production will star soprano Carol Neblett, bass Carlo Cossutta and baritone Gian-Piero Mastromei.

Prince's credits include "Side by Side by Sondheim," "A Little Night Music," "Cabaret," "Zorba," "Superman," "West Side Story," "Damn Yankees" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." He has recently finished directing a film version of "A Little Night Music" with Elizabeth Taylor and Diana Rigg.

College Gifts

NEW YORK (AP) — Voluntary donations to American colleges and universities reached an all-time high of about $2.4 billion in the 1975-76 academic year, according to a survey conducted annually by the Council for Financial Aid to Education (CFAE).

The figure represents an increase of $250 million, or 11.6 per cent, according to CFAE officials who said last year was the first time that the increase in gifts kept pace with the increase in educational expenses. The officials expressed hope that voluntary donations will once again be a major factor in supporting higher education.

Individual supporters accounted for the biggest portion of the increase in donations, giving learning institutions an estimated $1.2 billion, CFAE officials said.

Man Slays 2 Persons, Kills Self

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — A 27-year-old Warren area man who wanted to buy gasoline on credit killed a gas station operator, a woman captive and himself after the woman tried to escape, police said as they continued to piece the episode together today.

Trumbull County Sheriff's Deputies said Thomas Thompson, 27, of Cortland, shot Marilyn Tustin, 23, of Warren, with a .22-caliber handgun which he then turned on himself Thursday.

The gunfire flared at a Southington Township gas station owned by Thomas Chaffe after Chaffe refused to sell gas to Thompson on credit, authorities said.

When Thompson was firing at Chaffe, the woman apparently leaped from the car and ran to Chaffe's nearby home, screaming, "He's going to kill me, he's going to kill me."

Deputies said Thompson caught up with her, shot her in the head and then killed himself. Mrs. Tustin and Chaffe were taken to Warren Hospital where they both died.

Thompson had left work that morning at the Champion Disposal Co. and told coworkers he was going to the house of his boss, Andy Arch, to drop off a lawn mower.

At the house, deputies said, he found Mrs. Tustin and her 3-year-old daughter. Mrs. Tustin, her husband, who was at work, and their daughter were staying at the house while Arch was vacationing.

Deputies said that Thompson abducted Mrs. Tustin and took a .22-caliber handgun and ammunition from the house. The daughter was left in the house and was not harmed, deputies said.

Police could give no reason for the abduction. Tustin told police Thompson was only an acquaintance and that Mrs. Tustin would never have left their daughter alone.

Riverview School To Be Converted

POWELL, Ohio (AP) — Riverview School, one of two state youth institutions for females, will be converted to an all-male facility by the end of the year, Ohio youth Director William K. Willis announced.

Females at Riverview will be transferred to nearby Scioto Village also in Delaware County, to community-based programs or be paroled, he said.

Willis said the decision was based on a declining female population and increasing male population. Males outnumber females 7-to-1 in the state's juvenile detention facilities, Willis said.

The 152-bed medium security institution will house 12-to-15-year-old males in need of academic education.

CB Regulations In Plain Words

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulations in plain, simple English? In language that almost anyone can understand? Well, the Federal Communications Commission is willing to try it for CB radio users.

The FCC has published in the Federal Register a proposed, completely rewritten set of rules designed, it says, to be much more readable and comprehensive.

Gone, in most instances, are the "therefores," "thereofs," "theretos," and "notwithstandings," the semicolons and wordy, difficult-to-understand paragraphs normally associated with government writings.

Instead, a question-and-answer format is proposed. Short, familiar words replace legal terminology. The personal "I-you-we" form is used to improve understanding. And charts are used to explain some of the longer rules.

It's enough to make Jimmy Carter smile. In his fireside chat to the nation earlier this year, the President proposed to "cut down on government regulations and make sure that those that are written are in plain English."

The director of the Federal Register, Fred J. Emery, wrote FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley that, as he read the proposed regulations, "it struck me how closely it meets the President's goals."

Business News

REALTY SALESMAN — Carl Agin, former owner and operator of the A and H Tire Company for 30 years, is now associated with Zarbaugh Realty as a salesman and auctioneer.

"The subject of CB radios is certainly of interest to a broad spectrum of the public. It is an area where counsel should not normally have to be consulted by the interested citizen," he said.

"The question-and-answer format in the table of contents, the clear, simple language and user-oriented format could well make it usable as a model regulation."

The Federal Register publishes all government regulations.

Why, besides the urging of the President, would the FCC want to simplify its CB regulations?

"We are taking this action in response to many complaints that the CB Radio Service rules are difficult to read and understand," it says. "If adopted, we expect that the new, rewritten rules will be much more readable and comprehensive and that, as a result, user rule compliance will increase."

That, it hopes, will increase the value of CBs to their users, now estimated to number more than 20 million.

NEW OVEN BEEF STEW
You can bake this ahead and reheat on the range.

1 1/2 pounds (scant) stewing beef chuck (about 1 1/2-inch cubes)
3 tablespoons corn or peanut oil
12 small onions
3 medium carrots, pared and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
1/2 pound snap beans, tipped and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
Several sprigs parsley, minced
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 cups water
8-ounce can or 1 cup homemade tomato sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1 bay leaf

Brown the beef in the hot oil and layer it with the onions, carrots, beans, parsley and garlic in a 2 1/2 to 3-quart casserole. Stir together the remaining ingredients and add. Cover tightly and bake in a 350-degree oven until beef is very tender — 1 3/4 hours. Let stand at room temperature, tightly covered, for 10 to 20 minutes before serving. If desired, skim some of the fat from the top. Makes 6 servings.

If you shred cabbage it is important to remember not to leave it exposed to air.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should Bachelors Have Their 'Day'?

DEAR ABBY: We have a Mother's Day and a Father's Day, why not officially declare a day to honor bachelors?

The great historian and philosopher, Will Durant, compiled a list of the ten men he rated as having the sharpest minds of all time. Among them were Plato, Isaac Newton, Voltaire, Immanuel Kant, Leonardo da Vinci and St. Thomas Aquinas, all of whom were bachelors!

Two of the world's greatest musicians were bachelors—Beethoven and Brahms. Oddly enough, the musician who was said to have been the greatest ladies' man of them all was Richard Wagner—a married man! Let's hear it for bachelors!

ED IN RICHMOND

DEAR ED: Why not? But two bachelors DID make it big in politics: James Buchanan, our 16th president, and Jerry Brown, California's governor.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a non-smoking guy going with a beautiful redhead whose breath smells like smoldering tires. This gal really turns me on, but her breath turns me off.

How do other guys handle this situation? Don't tell me to take up smoking so I won't notice her breath. I was a three-pack-a-day man until my brother developed lung cancer, and that cured me.

Answer soon. I want to marry this girl, but wonder how to handle this one major problem.

TIMID TIM

DEAR TIM: Try the direct approach. If that doesn't work, the ball is in your court again, and only you can decide if you want this beautiful redhead whose breath turns you off.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from STUMPED whose fiancé suddenly developed the fear of driving, so now she complains because she must do all the driving, which will limit her social life! Ha! What a wonderful helpmate she is. My condolences to the man who's stuck with her. I wonder what she would have done in my place.

Twenty-five years ago, my husband also "lost his nerve" about driving, and rather than see him risk his life

Metzenbaum Raps Energy Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, used the remaining hours before his departure to the Peoples Republic of China to announce his opposition to President Carter's energy proposal.

"I will oppose actively and vigorously a six-cent tax on gasoline" which would result from the proposed wellhead tax on crude oil, Metzenbaum said at a press conference Thursday.

"A wellhead tax will raise $13 billion a year, but the manner and procedure of getting it back to the people is not clear," he said.

The President's plan "will not save gas and energy to the degree that it is worth the $85 billion it would cost" over the next five years. "It will result in the saving of 25,000 barrels of oil a day, but that is insignificant when you consider we use 17 million barrels a day."

He said he favors energy conservation but "you can't do it by pricing the product out of the market place."

Metzenbaum said the President's program would "increase unemployment and add to the inflationary spiral. I support the President in the objective of saving energy, but not by increasing the price of gasoline and natural gas."

As for his trip to China, "My bags are packed. I'm excited and enthused."

The senator noted his visit will be the first by a high U.S. official since the return to power of vice premier Teng Hsiao-ping. But Metzenbaum said he sees the trip as a chance to learn personally how the Chinese live.

"I am not carrying any messages to China," Metzenbaum said hours before his departure from Columbus.

"I have been briefed. I have been in touch with the State Department. And I will meet with some Chinese officials. But I do not consider myself a high-level spokesman for the United States."

The senator said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will also visit China while he is there.

Metzenbaum said he hopes to meet with Vance and with Leonard Woodcock, U.S. Ambassador to China. But he said he has not "sought out top (Chinese) officials."

"I am more interested in the human interest things," Metzenbaum said. "I want to meet with doctors and walk barefoot in the fields with the farmers. I want to learn more about China for myself."

Metzenbaum said he is paying for the trip. He said he would fly to Chicago to meet his wife Shirley and then to Los Angeles where they would be joined by their daughter Shelley, who speaks Chinese.

Metzenbaum will visit Peking, Shanghai, Kwang Chow and Hang Chow. Side trips still are being arranged, an aide said. The senator will return to the United States on Sept. 3.

Rhodes Makes Appointments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven appointments to agencies and advisory councils were announced Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

They are:

—William H. Fellows, owner and operator of an Akron management consulting firm, reappointed to the Energy and Resource Development Agency for five years.

—Michael J. Guralnick of Columbus, director of Nisonger Center at Ohio State University, to the Development Disabilities State Planning Council succeeding Dr. William Gibson who resigned.

—Bill J. Poling, director of parks and recreation in Worthington, named to the Parks and Recreation Council, succeeding Ardath H. Lynch who resigned.

—Miles L. Waggoner, administrator of Marion General Hospital, named to the advisory council to the board of nursing education and nurse registration, succeeding Richard J. Murray.

—Louada M. Morgan, assistant to the director of counseling and testing at Muskingum College; Emory L. Leverett, assistant Toledo schools superintendent and Barbara J. Rice of Dayton, reappointed to the Special Education Advisory Council.

5,000 Inmates

Paroled in Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 5,000 prison inmates were paroled in fiscal 1977, the most for any year since the Adult Parole Authority was established in 1965, the director of the APA reported Thursday.

John V. Shoemaker said 5,028 prisoners were released between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977. He attributed the increase to a revision in procedures to speed up the release of nondangerous offenders.

Pearce Heads Tarlton Seniors

The Tarlton Senior Citizen Club was organized by Fred Howell, president of Pickaway County Senior Citizen Club, and Senior Services Coordinator, Vera Saunders.

Elected as officers were: Forest Pearce, president; vice president and program chairman, Pauline Pearce; secretary, Viola Hartranft; and treasurer, Clendell Reid.

The next meeting will be held at 10 a.m. in the Community Building of Tarlton on Tuesday, September 13.

Pauline Pearce, program chairman, will be in charge of the program. There will be a carry-in dinner at noon. Members should bring a dish and table service. Drinks will be furnished.

Set Meet For Clark Lakes Senior Citizens

A Senior Citizens organization meeting of residents of the Clark Lake vicinity for men and women who are 55 years of age and over will be held 10 a.m. Monday, August 22, at the Civic Center Association Building.

Pat Windon and Emiline Nelson of the Clark Lake area and Vera Saunders, Senior Services Coordinator of Pickaway County, will help organize the Clark Lake Senior Citizen Club.

The Senior Citizen Club purpose is to have an organized club to have fun, food, fellowship, make craft, and to play games.

NEW OVEN BEEF STEW

You can bake this ahead and reheat on the range.

1 1/4 pounds (scant) stewing beef chuck (about 1 1/2-inch cubes)
3 tablespoons corn or peanut oil
12 small onions
3 medium carrots, pared and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
1/2 pound snap beans, tipped and sliced crosswise 1/4-inch thick
Several sprigs parsley, minced
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 cups water
8-ounce can or 1 cup homemade tomato sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1 bay leaf

Brown the beef in the hot oil and layer it with the onions, carrots, beans, parsley and garlic in a 2 1/2 to 3-quart casserole. Stir together the remaining ingredients and add. Cover tightly and bake in a 350-degree oven until beef is very tender — 1 1/4 hours. Let stand at room temperature, tightly covered, for 10 to 20 minutes before serving. If desired, skim some of the fat from the top. Makes 6 servings.

If you shred cabbage it is important to remember not to leave it exposed to air.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should Bachelors Have Their 'Day'?

DEAR ABBY: We have a Mother's Day and a Father's Day, why not officially declare a day to honor bachelors?

The great historian and philosopher, Will Durant, compiled a list of the ten men he rated as having the sharpest minds of all time. Among them were Plato, Isaac Newton, Voltaire, Immanuel Kant, Leonardo da Vinci and St. Thomas Aquinas, all of whom were bachelors!

Two of the world's greatest musicians were bachelors—Beethoven and Brahms. Oddly enough, the musician who was said to have been the greatest ladies' man of them all was Richard Wagner—a married man!

Let's hear it for bachelors!

ED IN RICHMOND

DEAR ED: Why not? But two bachelors DID make it big in politics: James Buchanan, our 16th president, and Jerry Brown, California's governor.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a non-smoking guy going with a beautiful redhead whose breath smells like smoldering tires. This gal really turns me on, but her breath turns me off.

How do other guys handle this situation? Don't tell me to take up smoking so I won't notice her breath. I was a three-pack-a-day man until my brother developed lung cancer, and that cured me.

Answer soon. I want to marry this girl, but wonder how to handle this one major problem.

TIMID TIM

DEAR TIM: Try the direct approach. If that doesn't work, the ball is in your court again, and only you can decide if you want this beautiful redhead whose breath turns you off.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from STUMPED whose fiancé suddenly developed the fear of driving, so now she complains because she must do all the driving, which will limit her social life! Ha! What a wonderful helpmate she is. My condolences to the man who's stuck with her. I wonder what she would have done in my place.

Twenty-five years ago, my husband also "lost his nerve" about driving, and rather than see him risk his life

Metzenbaum Raps Energy Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, used the remaining hours before his departure to the Peoples Republic of China to announce his opposition to President Carter's energy proposal.

"I will oppose actively and vigorously a six-cent tax on gasoline" which would result from the proposed wellhead tax on crude oil, Metzenbaum said at a press conference Thursday.

"A wellhead tax will raise $13 billion a year, but the manner and procedure of getting it back to the people is not clear," he said.

The President's plan "will not save gas and energy to the degree that it is worth the $85 billion it would cost" over the next five years. "It will result in the saving of 25,000 barrels of oil a day, but that is insignificant when you consider we use 17 million barrels a day."

He said he favors energy conservation but "you can't do it by pricing the product out of the market place."

Metzenbaum said the President's program would "increase unemployment and add to the inflationary spiral. I support the President in the objective of saving energy, but not by increasing the price of gasoline and natural gas."

As for his trip to China, "My bags are packed. I'm excited and enthused."

The senator noted his visit will be the first by a high U.S. official since the return to power of vice premier Teng Hsiao-ping. But Metzenbaum said he sees the trip as a chance to learn personally how the Chinese live.

"I am not carrying any messages to China," Metzenbaum said hours before his departure from Columbus.

"I have been briefed. I have been in touch with the State Department. And I will meet with some Chinese officials. But I do not consider myself a high-level spokesman for the United States."

The senator said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will also visit China while he is there.

Metzenbaum said he hopes to meet with Vance and with Leonard Woodcock, U.S. Ambassador to China. But he said he has not "sought out top (Chinese) officials."

"I am more interested in the human interest things," Metzenbaum said. "I want to meet with doctors and walk barefoot in the fields with the farmers. I want to learn more about China for myself."

Metzenbaum said he is paying for the trip. He said he would fly to Chicago to meet his wife Shirley and then to Los Angeles where they would be joined by their daughter Shelley, who speaks Chinese.

Metzenbaum will visit Peking, Shanghai, Kwang Chow and Hang Chow. Side trips still are being arranged, an aide said. The senator will return to the United States on Sept. 3.

Past State Leader Will Speak To Local Legion

Robert Klipstine, Past Commander of the American Legion, department of Ohio, will be the speaker at the installation of 1978 officers at the Hall-Adkins Post 134 this Saturday evening.

ROBERT L. KLIPSTINE

A prime rib dinner and cocktail hour will proceed the installation and a dance will follow.

Post 134 officers to be installed include: John Icenhour, Commander; Betty Kurtz, 1st Vice Commander; Ronald Easter, 2nd Vice Commander; David Cupp, Adjutant; Richard Blaney, Finance Officer; Asa Robinson, Chaplain; Gene Dilley, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Executive Committee members Harold Hill,

Davidson Will Head Fire Benefit

CINCINNATI (AP) — Singer John Davidson, the headliner the night that a fire killed 164 persons at the Beverly Hills Supper Club, will top a list of big name entertainers in a benefit here Sept. 15 for the children of the victims.

Meanwhile, damage suits filed in connection with the May 28 disaster at Southgate, Ky. topped the $1 billion mark.

Other entertainers who have confirmed they will appear at the benefit in Cincinnati's Riverfront Coliseum include Robert Goulet, Joey Heatherton and the Van Dells.

"We wanted to do something. There are a lot of the children who are going to need help and we hope we can help them in some small way," said Byron C. Edmonds, a bartender at the club and president of the Beverly Hills Memorial Fund, Inc.

Edmonds said attorneys will draw up special guidelines for distribution on the basis of need.

Davidson, who has refused to discuss the fire since the disaster, was a willing volunteer, Edmonds said.

"He said he wants to do whatever he can to help," Edmonds added.

Another suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court at Covington, Ky., seeks $200 million for the estates of Dorothy V. Wilson Polley and George C. Polley of Ironton, Ohio.

Named as defendants, as in previous suits, were 4-R Corp., Richard J. Schilling and his three sons, architect William Roeding, The City of Southgate and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Fifteen suits have been filed in Campbell County Circuit Court and 23 in federal court.

James Price, Glenn Cook, George Brown, Ermil Stonerock, Gary Morris, and Ron Carpenter.

The event will be held at the post home on U.S. Route 23 south of Circleville, and is open to members and their guests. Reservations may be made by calling the post home.

Klipstine is from West Milton, Ohio, and is the immediate past commander of the Ohio American Legion.

Klipstine is a veteran of World War II, having served in the South Pacific theatre with the United States Marines for four years. He is also a life member of the Gingrich-Poince Post in West Milton, having served as commander of that post for two years, and is a past commander of the Ohio Legion's Third District.

Klipstine and his wife Nancy are the parents of two daughters.

Prince Production

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold Prince, one of the most successful directors and producers of American theater will stage Puccini's opera "Girl of the Golden West" during the Lyric Opera of Chicago's 1978 season, company officials said.

Prince will stage the opera in cooperation with conductor Bruno Bartoletti. The production will star soprano Carol Neblett, bass Carlo Cossutta and baritone Gian-Piero Mastromei.

Prince's credits include "Side by Side by Sondheim," "A Little Night Music," "Cabaret," "Zorba," "Superman," "West Side Story," "Damn Yankees" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." He has recently finished directing a film version of "A Little Night Music" with Elizabeth Taylor and Diana Rigg.

College Gifts

NEW YORK (AP) — Voluntary donations to American colleges and universities reached an all-time high of about $2.4 billion in the 1975-76 academic year, according to a survey conducted annually by the Council for Financial Aid to Education (CFAE).

The figure represents an increase of $250 million, or 11.6 per cent, according to CFAE officials who said last year was the first time that the increase in gifts kept pace with the increase in educational expenses. The officials expressed hope that voluntary donations will once again be a major factor in supporting higher education.

Individual supporters accounted for the biggest portion of the increase in donations, giving learning institutions an estimated $1.2 billion, CFAE officials said.

Gas was first used as a fuel in Ohio in 1838, collected from a well near Findlay, Hancock County. Prior to that time gas was considered a useless nuisance. It was not until after the Civil War that natural gas was recognized as an important resource.—AP

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — A 27-year-old Warren area man who wanted to buy gasoline on credit killed a gas station operator, a woman captive and himself after the woman tried to escape, police said as they continued to piece the episode together today.

Trumbull County Sheriff's Deputies said Thomas Thompson, 27, of Cortland, shot Marilyn Tustin, 23, of Warren, with a .22-caliber handgun which he then turned on himself Thursday.

The gunfire flared at a Southington Township gas station owned by Thomas Chaffe after Chaffe refused to sell gas to Thompson on credit, authorities said.

When Thompson was firing at Chaffe, the woman apparently leaped from the car and ran to Chaffe's nearby home, screaming, "He's going to kill me, he's going to kill me."

Deputies said Thompson caught up with her, shot her in the head and then killed himself. Mrs. Tustin and Chaffe were taken to Warren Hospital where they both died.

Thompson had left work that morning at the Champion Disposal Co. and told coworkers he was going to the house of his boss, Andy Arch, to drop off a lawn mower.

At the house, deputies said, he found Mrs. Tustin and her 3-year-old daughter. Mrs. Tustin, her husband, who was at work, and their daughter were staying at the house while Arch was vacationing.

Deputies said that Thompson abducted Mrs. Tustin and took a .22-caliber handgun and ammunition from the house. The daughter was left in the house and was not harmed, deputies said.

Police could give no reason for the abduction. Tustin told police Thompson was only an acquaintance and that Mrs. Tustin would never have left their daughter alone.

Riverview School To Be Converted

POWELL, Ohio (AP) — Riverview School, one of two state youth institutions for females, will be converted to an all-male facility by the end of the year, Ohio youth Director William K. Willis announced.

Females at Riverview will be transferred to nearby Scioto Village also in Delaware County, to community-based programs or be paroled, he said.

Willis said the decision was based on a declining female population and increasing male population. Males outnumber females 7-to-1 in the state's juvenile detention facilities, Willis said.

The 152-bed medium security institution will house 12-to-15-year-old males in need of academic education.

CB Regulations In Plain Words

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulations in plain, simple English? In language that almost anyone can understand? Well, the Federal Communications Commission is willing to try it for CB radio users.

The FCC has published in the Federal Register a proposed, completely rewritten set of rules designed, it says, to be much more readable and comprehensive.

Gone, in most instances, are the "therefore," "thereof," "theretos," and "notwithstanding," the semicolons and wordy, difficult-to-understand paragraphs normally associated with government writings.

Instead, a question-and-answer format is proposed. Short, familiar words replace legal terminology. The personal "I-you-we" form is used to improve understanding. And charts are used to explain some of the longer rules.

It's enough to make Jimmy Carter smile. In his fireside chat to the nation earlier this year, the President proposed to "cut down on government regulations and make sure that those that are written are in plain English."

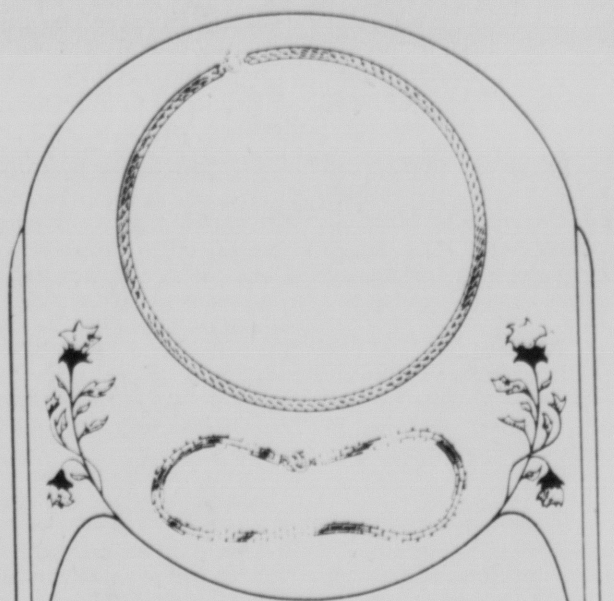

The director of the Federal Register, Fred J. Emery, wrote FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley that, as he read the proposed regulations, "it struck me how closely it meets the President's goals."

CB Regulations In Plain Words

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulations in plain, simple English? In language that almost anyone can understand? Well, the Federal Communications Commission is willing to try it for CB radio users.

The FCC has published in the Federal Register a proposed, completely rewritten set of rules designed, it says, to be much more readable and comprehensive.

Business News

REALTY SALESMAN — Carl Agin, former owner and operator of the A and H Tire Company for 30 years, is now associated with Zarbaugh Realty as a salesman and auctioneer.

"The subject of CB radios is certainly of interest to a broad spectrum of the public. It is an area where counsel should not normally have to be consulted by the interested citizen," he said.

"The question-and-answer format in the table of contents, the clear, simple language and user-oriented format could well make it usable as a model regulation."

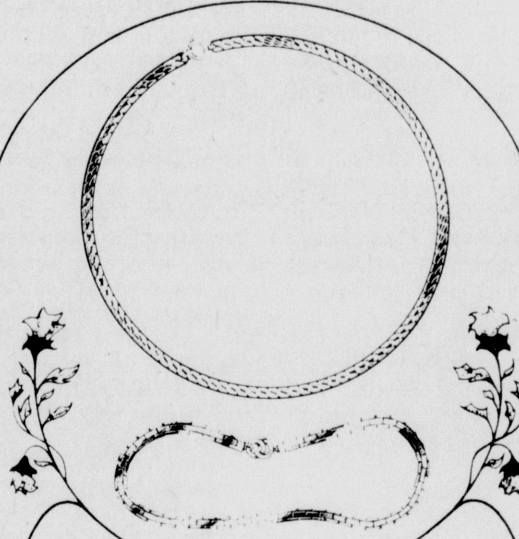

The Federal Register publishes all government regulations.

Why, besides the urging of the President, would the FCC want to simplify its CB regulations?

"We are taking this action in response to many complaints that the CB Radio Service rules are difficult to read and understand," it says. "If adopted, we expect that the new, rewritten rules will be much more readable and comprehensive and that, as a result, user rule compliance will increase."

That, it hopes, will increase the value of CBs to their users, now estimated to number more than 20 million.

The Rev. David Frazer will be preaching at the 8:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. worship services Sunday at the Community United Methodist Church.

Pastor Carl Zehner's sermon topic for the Trinity Lutheran Church Sunday will be "Giants and Grasshoppers."

Sunday at the Church of the Nazarene, Rev. A. E. Pusey, founder of the local church, will be speaking in both the morning worship and the 7 p.m. services.

The Zion United Methodist Church, three miles east of Oakland, Ohio, will be having their annual homecoming Aug. 21. The basket dinner will be at 12:30 p.m. and afternoon service at 2 p.m.

Rev. Carl Butterbaugh will be speaker for the afternoon service. There will be special singing and special music. Everyone is invited to attend. The Rev. Paul Greenwell is pastor.

The Rev. Donald E. Mumma, superintendent of the Portsmouth District, will be the guest speaker at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at the Lancaster United Methodist Camp Ground, 2151 W. Fair Ave. He is a graduate of Taylor University and Oberlin School of Theology. His pastorates in Ohio include: Piqua, Lima, and Chillicothe.

At 2:30 p.m. "The Mowerys," from Bluffton, Ohio, will present a concert of sacred music. Both Ward and Anita Mowery have extensive musical training and have taught in the school on the high school and college level. Their two children, Dale and Angela, will perform with the group.

The Rev. George S. Brown will speak at the evening service which begins with Vespers at 7 p.m. featuring Curt and Charlotte Davis. The Rev. Brown is pastor of the Belmont United Methodist Church, Dayton. He is a graduate of OSU and Drew Theological Seminary. Pastorates in Ohio include: Wesley Chapel, Somerset, and Maize Manor.

The services for the First Church of Christ in Christian Union, 436 East Ohio Street has been changed to 9 a.m. because of the camp meeting services.

Mr. George Walker and the Gospel Mellotones of Dayton will be providing the special music. The pastor, The Rev. H. David Cyrus, will bring the message.

The Sunday service from 9 to 10 a.m. will be the only services during the camp.

"Jesus: Friends And Foes" will be the sermon theme of the Rev. Don R. Yocom at the Sunday morning worship service of the Good Shepherd United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dean Wolfe of the Church of the Brethren has selected "The Lord

Is My Shepherd, I Shall Not Want" as the theme of his Sunday sermon.

The Gospel Center of Chillicothe will host a gospel sing tonight at 7:30 p.m. at A. W. Marion State Park.

Featured groups will be The Four Saints and Barb and Herb and The Young Gospels.

A gospel sing will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday at the Legion Hall in Williamsport. It will be presented by the Rev. Dick Lugenbeel, president of the Flemming County and Southern Gospel Hymn Association. He is the former minister of the Five Points Methodist Church, and is now doing evangelistic work.

The Mowerys, a family of professional singers from Bluffton, will present a concert at Emmett Chapel United Methodist Church, 318 Tarlton Road, in both services Sunday, 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Their music is outstanding and they are kept busy in youth rallies, churches and special programs.

Christian Peace Officers Formed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sgt. Jim Higgins, a 29-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department, expresses despair at the "macho image" of insensitive, hard-drinking, boisterous policemen.

"A man can get a heart of stone doing police work and his love for others shrivels up and drifts away," said Higgins.

The burly sergeant is deeply involved in a small but growing group of law enforcement agents who have formed the Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers. Twenty-five officers belong to the San Francisco chapter with other units in Oakland, Los Angeles and other cities.

Sgt. Art Brandwood, president of the fellowship's 10-member Oakland chapter, said trying to spread the Gospel among policemen is a difficult challenge.

He said many officers look on Christianity as "a weakness, a crutch that's alright for women, children and old people — but not for the rugged, he-man type of guy."

However, Brandwood said "God is dealing with that attitude" through the example of others in police ranks who are respected for physical prowess and proven ability as cops "and who still love and serve Christ."

Higgins and his partner, Sgt. Jim Crowley, made an appeal for prayers last October on the Virginia-based Christian Television Network. They decried San Francisco as a "wicked city that needs all the prayers it can get."

Their religious message to anyone who will listen involves an evangelical attack on pornography, drug addiction, homosexuality and San Francisco's high rate of alcoholism, suicide and venereal disease.

Last summer, Crowley got embroiled in a public spat with his own police chief, Charles Gain, when Gain urged gay policemen to come out of the closet.

The husky Crowley said he considered homosexuals as "the deceived who are deceiving others and leading them down the path to Satan. Only Jesus can break that bondage." Crowley and Higgins said they pray daily that Gain and Mayor George Moscone will "finally come to the Lord."

San Francisco is a particularly fertile city for religious reawakening Crowley said, "because any vocal minority can find a politician willing to change the law, rather than enforce it. The Bible says the law was not meant for the righteous man, but for the wicked. If we keep going the way we are, we'll soon be rapist."

Higgins said he is not surprised that some people may find it difficult to believe that a hardened, street-wise cop can radically change his life by reading the Bible. "People who have known us for years, like our wives, can see the change," he said, "My life is great now."

"The things that used to be so important, putting the career first, ahead of everything, going out and drinking with the boys, having a ball, all have vanished. It's all gone through the mercy of Jesus."

GOD'S LANDMARKS

When I was a little girl, I used to think that God lived in the steeple of Grandfather's church. I believed, too, that Grandfather had a marvelous monopoly, a private pipeline connecting him with those upper regions.

When I told him, Grandfather hugged me close and chuckled. "Child," he said, "You can't shut God up in a church or in one man's heart. He's everywhere — in whispering winds, the wild goose's call, in winter's purple clouds and scarlet leaves of fall. Wherever you see beauty — you see God."

Not long ago I went back to that little town and visited the church. It looked just the same. The white spire gleamed in the sun, piercing the blue summer sky. Wide doors stood open and inviting, and a gentle breeze wafted faint strains of an anthem to me. I remembered Grandfather's words, and a prayer of thanks rose in my heart for his church. Silently I prayed too for all the landmarks of God — His churches that spread across this land, symbols of His might and glory.

THE RADIO HOBBYIST

By Frederick O. Maia
KKB-0924 - WSUT

Executive Director, American Radio Council

How many of you out there remember "Class A" CB? It has been with us for the last thirty years although it has been recently renamed the General Mobile Radio Service, (GMRS). Ignored by nearly everyone for three decades, FN-CB, as it is sometimes called is currently enjoying new popularity. Most hobbyists are still totally unaware that this excellent radio service is available to them. The reason that Class-A CB never caught on was the high cost of UHF radio equipment and the very few stations on the air with which to communicate.

Judging, however, by a public notice issued by the Federal Communications Commission last week, more and more applicants are applying for GMRS licenses. The FCC said that applicants could expect delays of up to two months in the issuance of their licenses. The delay being due to an increase in application receipts. The number of applications received during June 1977 increased 185 per cent over June 1976. The Commission said that it expected that the number of GMRS license applications would continue to increase in the future. There are approximately 5,000 GMRS licensees at present . . . still very short of the more than ten million Class D-CB licenses in effect now.

The General Mobile Radio Service is one of the Personal Radio Services designed to provide a private, short-distance personal communications service to the general public. It consists of 8 pairs of channels in the 460 to 470 MHz UHF band. Heralded as a combination landmobile and CB band, the GMRS offers personal radio communications through an assigned pair of frequencies. Two decades ago much more spectrum space was available to what was then the "Class B" Citizens Radio Service. Because of little use, the Class A and B frequencies were reallocated to other services. This has left the GMRS with only eight paired channels. The reason for the pairing is because some users operate in duplex - sending and receiving at the same time, the same way you talk on the telephone. This method of operation must use two different frequencies for one conversation.

Up to 100 mile radio range can be obtained by utilizing repeater stations that retransmit your mobile signals. The radio conversation is "repeated" by a centrally located receiver-transmitter combination using a more efficient antenna installed in a high spot. Since UHF frequencies are propagated by "line of sight" and are normally stopped by natural and man-made obstructions, the repeater stations, in effect, reach around these.

Low power mobile transceivers (5 or 10 watts is enough, although 1 watt or less frequently gets the job done) are all that are needed for long distance contacts since the mobile radio must only be powerful enough to reach the repeater station. Once the repeater receives an incoming signal on an assigned frequency, it automatically retransmits it at much higher power. In effect, even though you may only have a one watt transceiver, you are talking with a possible 100 watt authority from a superb antenna location! Use of repeaters can be obtained by buying a repeater station outright and installing it in a good location - or you can lease use of one by paying a monthly charge - say $5.00 a month - just like your monthly telephone bill, from a commercial communications company. Even without repeaters, UHF radio can reach much farther and with greater reliability than Class D - CB.

Many accessories are available for the GMRS. One repeater station accessory, called an autopatch, allows you to tie in to public telephone lines by touch-tone dialing. Telephone service from your car is available today for the masses!

The big problem with the old Class A Citizens Radio Service used to be a complete lack of radio equipment - and what was available was prohibitively expensive for the mass market. One company, however, has just heavily invested in mass-producing the necessary UHF-FM transceivers and has succeeded in reducing the cost to below the $400 level . . . low enough to be afforded by many who want the increased clarity and lack of background noise that FM communication affords. Actually FCC rules allow either AM or FM modulation, but equipment makers have stayed with the superior FM mode. This same company is also producing the repeater stations and plans are for their equipment distributors to also install and provide repeater service for their customers. The UHF transceivers themselves will have only two channels and will be crystal controlled. It is expected that the FCC will permit marketing of this equipment in the near future - it is not yet on the market.

GMRS equipment is limited to 50 watts output and is basically the same as 450-470 land-mobile FM radio equipment. The use of high gain antennas at any height, as long as they do not pose a threat to air navigation, is permitted. At present a licensee can operate on only one paired frequency, however, pressure is being put on the FCC to authorize licensees the right to operate on all eight channels, the same as in the present Class-D CB band. The FCC established Personal Use Radio Advisory Committee (PURAC) is taking a long look at the communications potential of UHF FM-CB and could well recommend expansion of the eight pairs to many more to meet the coming needs of the public.

Teater Receives SCS Honors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio natural resources Director Robert W. Teater has received the Soil Conservation Society of America's Honor Award for 1977.

Society President J. Vernon Martin, Fort Worth, Tex., presented the award during the 32nd annual meeting of the organization on Wednesday in Richmond, Va.

Teater was recognized for his contributions to natural resources education and research and for developing a strong natural resources department in Ohio, the organization said.

Executive Director, American Radio Council

How many of you out there remember "Class A" CB? It has been with us for the last thirty years although it has been recently renamed the General Mobile Radio Service, (GMR). Ignored by nearly everyone for three decades, FN-CB, as it is sometimes called is currently enjoying new popularity. Most hobbyists are still totally unaware that this excellent radio service is available to them. The reason that Class-A CB never caught on was the high cost of UHF radio equipment and the very few stations on the air with which to communicate.

Judging, however, by a public notice issued by the Federal Communications Commission last week, more and more applicants are applying for GMR licenses. The FCC said that applicants could expect delays of up to two months in the issuance of their licenses. The delay being due to an increase in application receipts. The number of applications received during June 1977 increased 185 per cent over June 1976. The Commission said that it expected that the number of GMR license applications would continue to increase in the future. There are approximately 5,000 GMR licenses at present . . . still very short of the more than ten million Class D-CB licenses in effect now.

The General Mobile Radio Service is one of the Personal Radio Services designed to provide a private, short-distance personal communications service to the general public. It consists of 8 pairs of channels in the 460 to 470 MHz UHF band. Heralded as a combination landmobile and CB band, the GMR offers personal radio communications through an assigned pair of frequencies. Two decades ago much more spectrum space was available to what was then the "Class B" Citizens Radio Service. Because of little use, the Class A and B frequencies were reallocated to other services. This has left the GMR with only eight paired channels. The reason for the pairing is because some users operate in duplex - sending and receiving at the same time, the same way you talk on the telephone. This method of operation must use two different frequencies for one conversation.

Up to 100 mile radio range can be obtained by utilizing repeater stations that retransmit your mobile signals. The radio conversation is "repeated" by a centrally located receiver-transmitter combination using a more efficient antenna installed in a high spot. Since UHF frequencies are propagated by "line of sight" and are normally stopped by natural and man-made obstructions, the repeater stations, in effect, reach around these.

Low power mobile transceivers (5 or 10 watts is enough, although 1 watt or less frequently gets the job done) are all that are needed for long distance contacts since the mobile radio must only be powerful enough to reach the repeater station. Once the repeater receives an incoming signal on an assigned frequency, it automatically retransmits it at much higher power. In effect, even though you may only have a one watt transmitter, you are talking with a possible 100 watt authority from a superb antenna location! Use of repeaters can be obtained by buying a repeater station outright and installing it in a good location - or you can lease use of one by paying a monthly charge - say $5.00 a month - just like your monthly telephone bill, from a commercial communications company. Even without repeaters, UHF radio can reach much farther and with greater reliability than Class D - CB.

Many accessories are available for the GMR. One repeater station accessory, called an autopatch, allows you to tie in to public telephone lines by touch-tone dialing. Telephone service from your car is available today for the masses!

The big problem with the old Class A Citizens Radio Service used to be a complete lack of radio equipment - and what was available was prohibitively expensive for the mass market. One company, however, has just heavily invested in mass-producing the necessary UHF-FM transceivers and has succeeded in reducing the cost to below the $400 level . . . low enough to be afforded by many who want the increased clarity and lack of background noise that FM communication affords. Actually FCC rules allow either AM or FM modulation, but equipment makers have stayed with the superior FM mode. This same company is also producing the repeater stations and plans are for their equipment distributors to also install and provide repeater service for their customers. The UHF transceivers themselves will have only two channels and will be crystal controlled. It is expected that the FCC will permit marketing of this equipment in the near future - it is not yet on the market.

GMR equipment is limited to 50 watts output and is basically the same as 450-470 land-mobile FM radio equipment. The use of high gain antennas at any height, as long as they do not pose a threat to air navigation, is permitted. At present a licensee can operate on only one paired frequency, however, pressure is being put on the FCC to authorize licensees the right to operate on all eight channels, the same as in the present Class-D CB band. The FCC established Personal Use Radio Advisory Committee (PURAC) is taking a long look at the communications potential of UHF FM-CB and could well recommend expansion of the eight pairs to many more to meet the coming needs of the public.

Teater Receives SCS Honors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio natural resources Director Robert W. Teater has received the Soil Conservation Society of America's Honor Award for 1977.

Society President J. Vernon Martin, Fort Worth, Tex., presented the award during the 32nd annual meeting of the organization on Wednesday in Richmond, Va.

Teater was recognized for his contributions to natural resources education and research and for developing a strong natural resources department in Ohio, the organization said.

City Board Approves Several Items Thursday

The Circleville Board of Education met in regular session Thursday evening in the Board offices in the Junior High building.

First on the agenda was the approval of minutes of the previous meeting and the month's invoices.

In the Superintendent's report to the Board, four resignations were accepted. Robert Willard resigned his position as junior high social studies teacher. Non-certificated personnel submitting resignations included Lois Cole, junior high secretary; Frances Elsea, teacher's aide; and Phyllis Quince, junior high cook.

The Board approved employment recommendations submitted by Superintendent Fritz Jacobs. Ann Marie Hanley was employed as a Title I remedial reading teacher. She has five years experience credit and holds a B.A. degree from the University of Massachusetts. Warren Anderson was also employed as a junior high social studies teacher. He holds a B.A. degree from the University of Akron.

Extra-curricular employment assignments approved by the Board include Debra Mallory as the assistant girls basketball coach at the high school; James Windle as assistant freshman football coach; and Dave Truex as the freshman football coach.

Non-certificated employment recommendations approved included Betty Combs, Junior High secretary; Evelyn Allison, Mound Street elementary secretary; Bonnie Morrison, teacher aide at High St. elementary; Marilyn Meenach, cook at the junior high; Juanita Schleich, cook at the junior high; Carol Hammond, half-time cook at Nicholas Drive; Christine Martin, cashier at the high school cafeteria; Roma Troutman, cafeteria supervisor; and Robert Carpenter was reassigned as a custodian to work where needed.

Board members gave their approval to a media contract with the Pickaway County Board of Education.

A contract was also approved with John Robinson in regards to transporting students to special classes in Columbus, London, and West Jefferson. The contract is for "six dollars per student per day to Columbus City schools, based on the number of days in the school calendar. If school is closed an adjustment related to gasoline will be made." The contract for transportation to London and West Jefferson is for "$30.80 per day (for three students) to London and West Jefferson. If additional students are added there is to be no additional cost added. (This is) based on the number of days in the school calendar. If school is closed an adjustment related to gasoline will be made." The students assigned to Columbus presently total nine, two go to West Jefferson, and one attends London.

Board members also gave approval to the substitute cook list, school bus routes, and the school lunch policy statement and state approval forms. The list for substitute teachers was also examined and approved.

Jacobs told the Herald, "we seem to have fewer and fewer substitute teachers. If anyone is interested in a substitute position in the school system, especially at the secondary level, we urge them to stop in at the offices in the Junior High building for more information."

Approval was given to the school lunch price schedule for the coming year. Student lunches will cost 45 cents, the same price as last year. Adult lunches will cost 85 cents, up from 70 cents last school year.

The increase is the result of a state education department mandate that the cost of adult lunches be at least the cost of the lunch according to printouts. A la carte and extra food prices were also approved along with extra milk prices. Students will pay six cents and eight cents for white and chocolate milk, respectively, and adults will pay 12 cents and 14 cents for white and chocolate milk, respectively.

The Board of Education approved a small increase in student fees.

Jacobs stated, "we have asked for the increase to offset the deficit we have encountered in this area. It has been several years since the last increase. We won't erase the deficit with this increase and we don't expect to, but it will help show the students that there is an accountability for courses that charge a lab fee for materials used."

Tuition for two students was also given approval, along with a policy statement regarding complimentary passes to school activities.

The Board was reminded in the agenda of the teacher orientation meeting on Aug. 26 at 9 a.m.

I.T.T. Continental Baking Company, Inc. was awarded the bread bid for the city school system for the coming school year.

Permission to attend professional meetings was granted to faculty and staff members. Betty Rickey and Cathy Wine will attend the Vocational Home Economics meeting at Columbus Aug. 8-10; William Rosengarten will attend the Distributive Education August Conference in Columbus Aug. 15-18; and Jacobs, Donald Metzler, and Rodger Wolfe will attend the State Department of Education meeting in Worthington on Aug. 19.

Approval was also given to investments and transfers of funds made by the Clerk.

At the end of the meeting, Jacobs informed Board members that, except for some small touch-up work, all buildings in the city school system are ready for the beginning of school later this month. With business completed, the meeting was adjourned at 8:45 p.m.

Youth Conservation Corps Camps Complete Session

Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) camps in Ohio wind up their 1977 activities Saturday with the completion of this summer's second four-week session.

Over 1,600 youths age 15-18 participated at 23 YCC camps operated in the state. The camps included 13 run by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR), five by local governments through a cooperative agreement with ODNR, and five by federal government agencies of the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior.

The coeducational program has the youths doing needed conservation work such as making and clearing trails, pruning trees, constructing picnic tables, wildlife management activities and community aid projects. The youths worked at hundreds of sites this year.

The tasks are designed to give campers a better understanding of the natural environment, while they're working to improve it.

During the four-week sessions participants work 32 hours a week and spend another eight hours in formal environmental education classes. On weekends, various recreational activities are provided, such as overnight camping, canoeing, horseback riding, field trips, nature hikes and other outdoor sports.

Several Ohio School districts award students environmental education credits for their work with the YCC.

Participants attending resident camps this year received about $220 plus room and board for a four-week session. Nonresident campers who commuted daily to the job, earned about $270 for the four-week period.

Accomplishments by YCC campers across the state this year included many hours of work at the State Fairgrounds in Columbus helping the Ohio Expositions Commission ready the grounds for the 1977 fair which opens a 12-day run August 16 and continues through August 28.

A contingent of 24 YCC workers have been selected to work at the state fair. They will assist in maintenance and litter removal, staff a YCC booth, help at the kiddie fishing pond and other Natural Resources activities, and work at the Ohio Historical Village.

The Ohio General Assembly adopted a resolution on July 13 commending the program and paying tribute to the young men and women and camp staffers who have participated in YCC activities over the past several years.

Ohio has been at the forefront of the national YCC program since its inception in 1970.

Judge To Rule On Deputy Firings

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A Morgan County Common Pleas Court judge will decide if Belmont County Sheriff Kathy Crumbley may have a hearing in the dispute over her not rehiring three employees of former Sheriff George Neff.

Mrs. Crumbley, Ohio's only female sheriff, is appealing an order of the Ohio Board of Personnel Review that she rehire Deputies Kenneth Perigloisi and Hugh Massa, and secretary Mary Lou Taylor.

Judge Forest A. MacDonald has allowed attorneys for the sheriff and the three employees 15 days to prepare briefs.

The board ruled Sheriff Crumbley acted before she had authority to do so and did not file the removal orders with the board as required. Mrs. Crumbley took office Jan. 3.

Mrs. Taylor was the secretary who handled the legal papers of the sheriff's office and handled office funds. Perigloisi, a detective, and Massa also handled office funds.

Humane Society Talks Of Fund Raising Events

The Pickaway County Humane Society met Wednesday in the Probate Court room. The Fund Raising Committee reported that the garage sale was successful and the project would be worthwhile next year.

The committee thanked everybody that worked, donated items and bought items. A special thanks was extended to Rosemarie Caruso who volunteered her home for the garage sale and worked every day.

The Fund Raising Committee is planning to hold a bake sale in October. All members are expected to either bake or work at the sale. Sign-up sheets will be available at the September meeting.

All funds from these projects go toward paying for the Neutering Program. Applications are still available for the neutering program at the Auditor's office in the Court House. Stop in and fill one out.

The September meeting will be election time. Plan to run for an office if called upon. All effort is needed to make the society run smoothly.

The next meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Sept. 14 in the Probate Court room. Please plan on attending.

LEHS Sets Registration

Logan Elm High School has set registration dates for new freshmen students and high school students new to the Logan Elm school district.

Anyone needing to register should report to the school between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. August 15 through August 25.

Students who took the ACT test in June may pick up the results at the high school during those days.

Contractors Meet

Members of the Tri-County Contractors Association will meet 7 p.m., Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms.

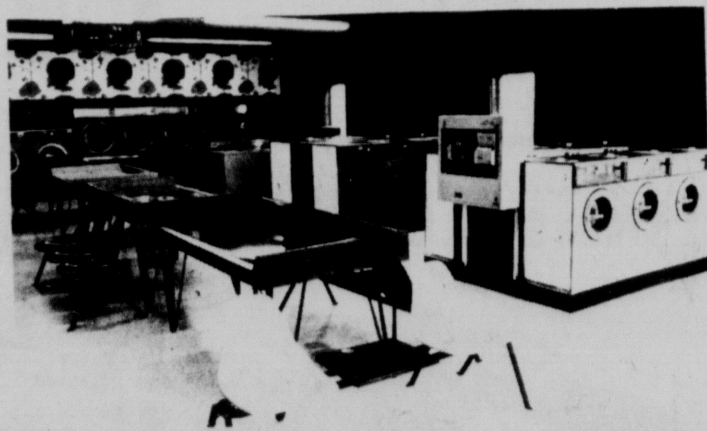

Program topic will be "Safety." Pickaway County members should make reservations with Bob Kenworthy, 474-3540, by Monday.

Judge To Rule On Deputy Firings

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A Morgan County Common Pleas Court judge will decide if Belmont County Sheriff Kathy Crumbley may have a hearing in the dispute over her not rehiring three employees of former Sheriff George Neff.

Mrs. Crumbley, Ohio's only female sheriff, is appealing an order of the Ohio Board of Personnel Review that she rehire Deputies Kenneth Perigloisi and Hugh Massa, and secretary Mary Lou Taylor.

Judge Forest A. MacDonald has allowed attorneys for the sheriff and the three employees 15 days to prepare briefs.

The board ruled Sheriff Crumbley acted before she had authority to do so and did not file the removal orders with the board as required. Mrs. Crumbley took office Jan. 3.

Mrs. Taylor was the secretary who handled the legal papers of the sheriff's office and handled office funds. Perigloisi, a detective, and Massa also handled office funds.

Humane Society Talks Of Fund Raising Events

The Pickaway County Humane Society met Wednesday in the Probate Court room. The Fund Raising Committee reported that the garage sale was successful and the project would be worthwhile next year.

The committee thanked everybody that worked, donated items and bought items. A special thanks was extended to Rosemarie Caruso who volunteered her home for the garage sale and worked every day.

The Fund Raising Committee is planning to hold a bake sale in October. All members are expected to either bake or work at the sale. Sign-up sheets will be available at the September meeting.

All funds from these projects go toward paying for the Neutering Program. Applications are still available for the neutering program at the Auditor's office in the Court House. Stop in and fill one out.

The September meeting will be election time. Plan to run for an office if called upon. All effort is needed to make the society run smoothly.

The next meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Sept. 14 in the Probate Court room. Please plan on attending.

LEHS Sets Registration

Logan Elm High School has set registration dates for new freshmen students and high school students new to the Logan Elm school district.

Anyone needing to register should report to the school between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. August 15 through August 25.

Students who took the ACT test in June may pick up the results at the high school during those days.

Contractors Meet

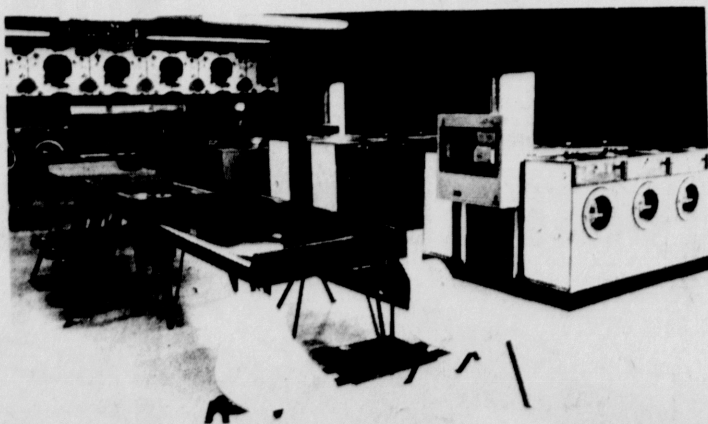

Members of the Tri-County Contractors Association will meet 7 p.m., Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms.

Program topic will be "Safety." Pickaway County members should make reservations with Bob Kenworthy, 474-3540, by Monday.

Reds Top Dodgers, 5-4; Rose Hits 2,900th

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Pete Rose has been around baseball so long that his numbers are really beginning to pile up.
One of the important numbers is 35. That's his age. Another is 2,900. That's his base hit total.
"I proved that when you turn 35 and take care of yourself, you can still play," the Cincinnati third baseman said Thursday night after his milestone hit helped the Reds beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-4.

Rose's 2,900th hit was a double in the fifth inning. Only 18 players in major league baseball history have more hits than Cincinnati's switch-hitting infielder.
"The thing I'm proudest about is getting that number of hits in only 15 years," said Rose. "My next two years are awfully important. I'd like to break Stan Musial's record. But it would be no disgrace to finish second or third."

Musial is the top hit-maker on the career National League list with 3,630. The all-time major league leader is Ty Cobb, who collected 3,903 hits.
In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 10-5; the Houston Astros edged the San Francisco Giants 7-5; the Pittsburgh Pirates walloped the New York Mets 9-1 and the San Diego Padres nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1.
Rose's double eventually led to Cincinnati's winning run. He scored on a single by Joe Morgan to give the Reds a 5-1 lead and help Tom Seaver withstand a late Dodger assault.
"I made it exciting, didn't I?" said Seaver, who pitched a six-hitter, but gave up a run in the seventh and two more in the eighth. "I felt very strong throughout. I didn't get tired at all."
Two of the runs off the Cincinnati ace were solo homers, by Dave Lopes in the first and by Reggie Smith in the seventh. Of the Lopes homer, Seaver said: "I just made a bad pitch and Lopes hit it out. You have to take these things in stride."
Dan Driessen got the Reds started with a three-run homer in the first off Burt Hooton. Driessen's 14th homer of the year followed a two-out walk to Morgan and a single by George Foster.

"It was a hanging changeup," said Driessen. "I was kind of looking for it."
A Dodger Stadium crowd of 53,022 watched as the Reds earned a split of the four-game series and moved within 1 1/2 games of the Dodgers in the National League West.
After the Reds scored their fourth run of the game in the fourth inning on Johnny Bench's RBI double and then took a 5-1 lead on Morgan's run-scoring single in the fifth, the Dodgers struck back.
After a run in the seventh, they made it close with two runs in the eighth on a two-out RBI double by Lopes and a run-scoring single by Bill Russell. But Seaver retired Smith on a fly to center to end the inning.
Phillies 10, Expos 5
Bake McBride drove in three runs and belted his ninth homer of the season and pitcher Jim Kaat had three hits as Philadelphia defeated Montreal for its eighth consecutive victory.
Kaat, who had two doubles, lasted only until the sixth. But he had enough of a lead at that juncture to improve his record to 5-7. The victory increased the first-place Phillies' margin over the Chicago Cubs to three games in the National League East.
Kaat, baseball's winningest active pitcher with 252 victories, gave up 11 hits.

Astros 7, Giants 5
Cesar Cedeno smashed three doubles and drove in three runs, helping Houston beat San Francisco. Cedeno's first double, a two-run shot in the fifth, tied the score 4-4 and his RBI double in the seventh keyed a three-run rally that put Houston ahead to stay.
Terry Puhl's leadoff single started the Astros' winning rally off loser Gary Lavelle in the seventh. Enos Cabell, who had three singles and scored three times, forced Puhl. Then Cedeno's double made it 5-5.
Bob Watson was walked intentionally, and Jose Cruz singled, putting Houston ahead. Art Howe's RBI single capped the rally and gave Dan Larson his first victory of the season after six losses.
Pirates 9, Mets 1
Bill Robinson drove in four runs and Odell Jones pitched a five-hitter to lead Pittsburgh over New York. The Pirates pounded 15 hits and drew seven walks, including nine hits in the first 4 1/3 innings off losing pitcher Pat Zachry.
"It was embarrassing," said New York Manager Joe Torre, who held a closed-door meeting with his players, apparently to read them the riot act. "Tonight I was really embarrassed. For a time when the balls were falling, it looked like a tryout camp. I thought for a while our guys were going through the motions."

Torre, however, did single out Zachry for a performance above and beyond the call of duty.
"Zach gave me everything he has," the Met manager said. "He's going to make a heck of a pitcher."
Padres 2, Braves 1
Pat Scanlon drew a two-out, bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth to cap a two-run rally that boosted San Diego over Atlanta. Trailing 1-0 entering the ninth, leadoff batter Jerry Turner hit a home run off Atlanta rookie Preston Hanna. Dave Winfield then drilled a double and was sacrificed to third by George Hendrick, who was safe when Hanna misplayed the bunt.
After Gene Tenace was walked intentionally to load the bases, Hanna retired Mike Champion and Gary Sutherland before Scanlon, pinch-hitting for winning pitcher Rick Sawyer, drew the winning walk.

Willie's Dillies

By A BENCHWARMER

I watched last weekend on the news as my own Cincinnati Reds fought it out with the Pittsburgh Pirates—literally. That little incident between Taveras and Joe Horner seemed to spark several similar confrontations around the major leagues.
This is not to argue who was right and who was wrong—in my opinion they were both wrong. If a pitcher would actually throw at a batter's head, I don't care what the stakes are, he shouldn't be allowed to play. And the same thing goes for anyone who would throw a piece of hardwood at another player.
Any of you young aspiring pitchers who read this—don't think for a minute that throwing at a batter is "cool". It might be cute and work for you at first, but you'll be the loser in the long run.
Every year at the outset of football season there seem to be more cries of "violence" and "cheap shot artist" in the pro leagues. And as much as I hate to admit it, many times hockey resembles nothing more than a street fight on skates. I hope we never see baseball slip to that level.

If you get a chance, take the short drive to Columbus and catch the Clippers in a game. It is well worth the 45 minute drive and it is freeway all the way to the stadium parking lot. Right now the fans have the turnstiles spinning like a kid's toy top—and only one word can describe new Franklin County Stadium—beautiful. The word "play-offs" is starting to be heard more and more too. At 6:30 p.m. tonight they take on the Rochester Red Wings in a double header, and after that they will have 10 more home dates.

The Fearless Forecast—We want the gold to flow to the Golden Bear in the PGA Classic, and after splitting a series with the Dodgers, don't forget the Reds yet! Also—if there is a Sunday evening game played in the Mound St. world series—it will be the "older kids" as the victors.

Sparky Gets Tough With Reds Players

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mistakes. Fundamentals. What has happened to us?" asks Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. He's keeping track of all of it.
"I'm writing it all down. Every night in a book I'm keeping. Then next spring we will correct it. All of it. But there is so much."
"We are totally ashamed of 1977," said Anderson. "You want to hang your head somewhere and not let someone see you. I don't want to be out socially. That's how disgraced I feel. I just want to be in dark alleys."

Anderson was still upset about the Reds' inability to stop Davy Lopes of the Dodgers in a rundown Wednesday night. The infield made eight throws after Fred Norman picked off the speedster and Lopes wound up safe at second following an error on a low throw to Pete Rose covering the bag.
"It'll be there in that book in big letters. That can't happen," said Anderson. Lopes scored the lone run in a 1-0 loss.
"If this was Class A baseball, with kids, I'd come in and tear the clubhouse apart seeing a rundown like that," said Anderson.
Two near collisions in the outfield by George Foster and Cesar Geronimo added another tally in the book.
"Three years they've been playing together and that happens. Not once. Not just tonight (Wednesday). All the time," said Anderson.
"We've been knocking the pitching but that hasn't been the trouble lately. The pitching has been good. Now we don't get no hits. We really haven't all year," Anderson said.
Anderson complained the Reds have not been getting the big hits when they are behind but mostly he is concerned with muffed fielding plays although the Reds had only 56 errors.
"Next spring, right from the beginning, we have to start from scratch: fundamentals, like a Class A club. It's a shame," he said.

Field Open For Amanda Five Mile Run

The third annual Amanda Labor Day five mile run will be held this year on Sept. 5 at 9 a.m. The race will be held in conjunction with the Amanda-Clearcreek Labor Day celebration.
All runners are to meet in front of Amanda-Clearcreek High School in front of the building on school street. Awards to be given include a trophy to the overall winner, trophies to the first five in each age division, and awards to the youngest and oldest runners. There will be one award per runner, and the awards ceremony will be held in the school auditorium after the parade.
Age divisions for men include 15 years old and under, 16-18 years, 19-24, 25-30, 31-37, 38-44, 45-51, and 52 and over. Women's categories include 16 and under, 17-24, and 25 and over.
The course is accurate, times will be announced every mile, water will be on the course, refreshments will be available to all runners following the race, the restrooms and shower facilities will also be available.
A small entry fee will be charged for all who enter prior to race day. Applications will be accepted, at a slightly higher rate, until 8:30 a.m. on the day of the race. The pre-race entry deadline is Sept. 2.
Entry forms may be obtained at the Pickaway County family YMCA. Completed forms may be mailed to Thad Davis, P.O. Box 92, Amanda, Ohio 43102.

The beat goes on for Bobby Bonds, the hottest American League hitter this side of Rod Carew.
Bonds, who has been on a tear since the start of August, did a one-man job on Boston Thursday night, driving in four runs—two of them with his 29th home run of the season—as California ended the Red Sox' 11-game winning streak with a 7-3 triumph.

The loss was particularly damaging because Baltimore and New York, both pursuing the Red Sox in the American League East race, both won.

I watched last weekend on the news as my own Cincinnati Reds fought it out with the Pittsburgh Pirates—literally. That little incident between Taveras and Joe Horner seemed to spark several similar confrontations around the major leagues.

This is not to argue who was right and who was wrong—in my opinion they were both wrong. If a pitcher would actually throw at a batter's head, I don't care what the stakes are, he shouldn't be allowed to play. And the same thing goes for anyone who would throw a piece of hardwood at another player.

Any of you young aspiring pitchers who read this—don't think for a minute that throwing at a batter is "cool". It might be cute and work for you at first, but you'll be the loser in the long run.

Every year at the outset of football season there seem to be more cries of "violence" and "cheap shot artist" in the pro leagues. And as much as I hate to admit it, many times hockey resembles nothing more than a street fight on skates. I hope we never see baseball slip to that level.

If you get a chance, take the short drive to Columbus and catch the Clippers in a game. It is well worth the 45 minute drive and it is freeway all the way to the stadium parking lot. Right now the fans have the turnstiles spinning like a kid's toy top—and only one word can describe new Franklin County Stadium—beautiful. The word "play-offs" is starting to be heard more and more too. At 6:30 p.m. tonight they take on the Rochester Red Wings in a double header, and after that they will have 10 more home dates.

The Fearless Forecast—We want the gold to flow to the Golden Bear in the PGA Classic, and after splitting a series with the Dodgers, don't forget the Reds yet! Also—if there is a Sunday evening game played in the Mound St. world series—it will be the "older kids" as the victors.

Sparky Gets Tough With Reds Players

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mistakes. Fundamentals. What has happened to us?" asks Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. He's keeping track of all of it.

"I'm writing it all down. Every night in a book I'm keeping. Then next spring we will correct it. All of it. But there is so much."

"We are totally ashamed of 1977," said Anderson. "You want to hang your head somewhere and not let someone see you. I don't want to be out socially. That's how disgraced I feel. I just want to be in dark alleys."

Anderson was still upset about the Reds' inability to stop Davy Lopes of the Dodgers in a rundown Wednesday night. The infield made eight throws as Fred Norman picked off the speedster and Lopes wound up safe at second following an error on a low throw to Pete Rose covering the bag.

"It'll be there in that book in big letters. That can't happen," said Anderson. Lopes scored the lone run in a 1-0 loss.

"If this was Class A baseball, with kids, I'd come in and tear the clubhouse apart seeing a rundown like that," said Anderson.

Two near collisions in the outfield by George Foster and Cesar Geronimo added another tally in the book.

"Three years they've been playing together and that happens. Not once. Not just tonight (Wednesday). All the time," said Anderson.

"We've been knocking the pitching but that hasn't been the trouble lately. The pitching has been good. Now we don't get no hits. We really haven't all year," Anderson said.

Anderson complained the Reds have not been getting the big hits when they are behind but mostly he is concerned with muffed fielding plays although the Reds had only 56 errors.

"Next spring, right from the beginning, we have to start from scratch: fundamentals, like a Class A club. It's a shame," he said.

On July 2, 1933, Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants shut out the "Gas House Gang" of St. Louis, 1-0, in 18 innings and did not give up a single walk.

Cathy Cook Sets PCC Mark

Cathy Cook, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cook, Circleville, set a record low score at the Pickaway Country Club Thursday by blasting a 75 from the blue tees.

Miss Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cook, Columbus, is a member of the Ohio State University golf team and has competed in many events including the invitational World Amateur.

Her brother, John, is also a member of the Ohio State University golf team. He won the World Amateur at age 14 and placed second last year.

Los Angeles Ram-draftee Nolan Cromwell will be tried at safety but was a quarterback in school at Kansas and also was a world class hurdler.

Personal Integrity Rules Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — In baseball, Cincinnati's Pete Rose will draw and quarter any foe who might try and obstruct his progress around the bases. Oakland's George Atkinson tries to decapitate anyone with the temerity to invade his football territory, as the Steelers' Lynn Swan can attest.

Guys in the National Hockey League have learned—the hard way—that it's not nice to try and do battle with the rambunctious head-hunter, Dave Schultz. In the very polite and proper game of tennis, Ilie Nastase will employ any ruse or any ugly tactic to disconcert an opponent.

These are not unique or isolated cases. They are cited merely as representative of the credo in big time professional sports, which is: "Grab the edge at any and all costs."

The exception to this rule is tournament golf which still adheres to the ancient virtues practiced by its Scottish forebears more than a century ago.

"The honor code is basic to the sport," says Joseph Dey, former director of the U.S. Golf Association, ex-commissioner of the pro tour and premier authority on the rules.

"It is bred into the game. A player must be responsible for his equipment and his score. Eliminate that and you have no game at all. It's simple. Every man must police himself. When two men tee off—one going to the left and the other to the right—you have trust each one to do what is right. You can't have a policeman following each one and watching every shot."

Golf's complete dependence on the integrity and fair play of its players was emphasized again this week in the illegal club controversy at the PGA Championship.

Eight top pros had iron clubs declared illegal because the grooves on the faces failed to meet the rule specifications of being no wider than 35-1,000th of an inch.

It seemed a rather trivial matter since most players agreed the grooving had no effect on a shot in dry conditions and possibly a minuscule affect out of wet grass. But the rules were installed to discourage private tinkering with clubs. And rules are rules.

The incident was blown into unnatural proportions by the fact that one of the eight players involved in club disqualifications was Tom Watson, the young star who won the Masters in April and the British Open last month.

Watson not only had a new set of clubs declared illegal but, when he had an old set flown in from his Kansas City home, those clubs also were found improper, forcing him to borrow a second-hand set for the tournament.

An unfortunate facet was that a taint was unfairly applied to Watson's fine 1977 record and little credit was given him for voluntarily asking that his clubs be checked when there was no demand he do so.

Johnny Miller put it in proper perspective. "Tommy didn't ask his manufacturer to make him a set of illegal clubs," Miller said.

It was golf's honor system that caused George Burns to ask for a check of his clubs last week in the Greater Hartford Open. And it was the integrity of the athletes such as Watson, Gary Player, Ray Floyd and Hale Irwin who asked for microscopic inspection of their clubs. They did not have to do it.

Some 60 players, including Jack Nicklaus, did likewise. Most were found to be well within the law.

Tidewater Tops Charleston, 5-1

By The Associated Press

Tidewater's John Pacella hypnotized himself and then did the same to the Charleston Charlies Thursday night as he held them to just three hits in the Tides' 5-1 win of the nightcap in International League baseball action.

In other games, the Tides took the first game of their double header 3-2, Richmond beat Pawtucket 7-2 and Syracuse defeated Toledo 8-6. Rochester at Columbus were idled by rain.

Pacella (6-2) hypnotizes himself before every game and needed only a two-run fifth inning single from second baseman Leo Foster for the win.

Gary Wilson (2-1) was tagged with the loss.

Borrowed Clubs Don't Slow Watson

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson, caught in the middle of the Great Golf Club Controversy, literally has a mixed bag in the 59th PGA Championship.

The 27-year-old Watson could have been excused if the events of this week had boggled his mind and caused him to lose confidence. But have no fear.

Watson, winner of five tournaments this year including the Masters and British Open, lost his clubs en route to Pebble Beach when he flew one way and his bag went another. When the clubs arrived, they were declared illegal because the grooves on the face of the irons did not meet U.S. Golf Association specifications.

He messaged home to Kansas City for an older set, one with which he won the 1975 British Open. He looked at them and figured he had better find a backup set in case they also were ruled illegal.

Watson sent an SOS to fellow pros for another set of irons. Roger Maltbie responded with an extra set he carried in the back of his car—a Silver Scot model that was at least 25 years old.

Fortunately, for him, the set was available; Watson's own second set was disqualified.

So, using Maltbie's irons, fellow pro Leonard Thompson's sand wedge and his own driver, No. 2 and No. 3 woods and putter—and with only eight practice swings, Watson fired a 68 Thursday over the famed Pebble Beach Golf Links. And he was only one stroke off the lead held by veteran Gene Littler, at 67.

At least eight other players had

Scott Perry Enjoying Anonymity

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Defensive back Scott Perry enjoys his anonymity behind a choir boy face, especially when the Cincinnati Bengals face the autograph hunters.

The second-year back, who plays three separate defensive back positions, said he knows his face is too sweet to belong to the nasty National Football League.

"I don't know if I enjoy anonymity or not but sometimes I search for it," said Perry, called "Preppy," by his teammates.

"I'm through and through the New England preppy," said the man from Williams College. "There's no way I can hide that."

"Basically, I have grown to realize image means very little. It shapes people's perceptions, but people's perceptions can change when they meet you," he said.

Perry grew up in Wilton, Conn., and prepped at the Kent School. He was appointed senior prefect his last year, equivalent of dorm master in a college. Although he was popular there, his strict disciplinary duties made it "an unhappy senior year."

"I recognize now how absurd the whole thing was. Academically, it was good preparation for college. But as far as self-development and making your own conscious choices, that didn't exist," said Perry who became his own version of a rolling stone.

Chiefs Still Seek 1st Grid Point

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"We are going to get better from here because we have better personnel than ever before," Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin said recently.

Perhaps he should have added, "because we can't get any worse."

His Chiefs, still looking for their first point of the 1977 National Football League exhibition season, meet the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in Arrowhead Stadium. Kansas City's pre-season opener last Saturday night was a wash-out ... or perhaps more accurately a wash-in ... with the Detroit Lions blanketing them 17-0 in the bubble-topped Silverdome.

Wiggin was at a loss to find something to praise, but he finally managed to laude the defense, saying it "turned in a pretty good effort." That defense will have to do more than pretty good this time. The Steelers showed last weekend they were closing in on midseason form quickly, beating Buffalo 28-24 on Terry Bradshaw's three touchdown passes. And the Steelers may have a fondness for Arrowhead. In their last visit there, they mangled the Chiefs 45-0.

In Saturday night's other preseason games, it will be Philadelphia at Los Angeles, Dallas at Seattle, Detroit at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Cincinnati, Chicago at Oakland, the New York Jets at Atlanta, Washington at Miami, San Francisco at San Diego, the New York Giants at New Orleans, St. Louis at Denver, New England vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, and Cleveland at Minnesota. On Sunday, Baltimore is at Houston.

"Right now we are trying to develop a winning football team for 1977," said Wiggin, whose 1976 Chiefs stumbled to a 5-9 record. "I think in many ways we are on target right now. I know 17-0 doesn't look like it, but I believe we are ... I think this team will pick up the pieces and get rolling."

Philadelphia is well ahead of its 1976 exhibition pace, namely because it didn't have one a year ago. The Eagles were 0-6 in the pre-season. Now they are glowing in the aftermath of a 21-3 victory over the Jets, who failed for the second time this year to score anything more than a field goal—and now have to face Atlanta, a shutout winner over St. Louis last week.

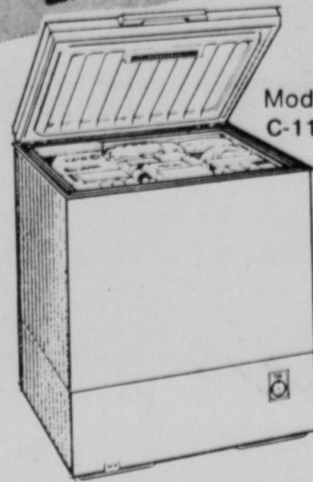

Seattle, now an American Conference team, opened with a surprising victory over former National Conference foe San Francisco. The Seahawks entertain Dallas, an early-season member of the walkingwounded club with Tony Dorsett and a number of other players hobbled by injuries. O.J. Simpson, blurred vision and all, should see some action in Buffalo's game against the Lions.

ROYAL WELCOME — Britain's Queen Elizabeth, with uniformed Lt. Gen. Sir David House following, is greeted by school children as she leaves helicopter after arriving at Hillsborough Castle to begin her jubilee visit to troubled Northern Ireland.

School Food Changes Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fare of school lunches and breakfasts subsidized by the federal government will be different by the time the new school year begins, but the changes may not be that dramatic, Agriculture Department officials say.

Almost 26 million children eat the lunches nationwide. About 2.6 million eat the breakfasts, mostly in urban areas.

Altogether, more than $2.2 million worth of food is consumed through the programs.

Or, at least that much is bought and served.

About 5 per cent is wasted, according to years of government surveys and a new one last month by the General Accounting Office.

Another school-lunch report by the congressional watchdog agency, however, figures more closely in the plans for changing the program's requirements on what will and won't be served.

But a top official said that the report still offers more opinion than solid guidance on solutions.

It said that the USDA-required "Type A Lunch" at the 92,595 participating schools may be too much for the youngsters, perhaps leading to obesity and more certainly discouraging them from eating all they're served.

Five items are mandatory: milk, meat or a substitute with an equal amount of protein, two vegetables and bread.

Last year, USDA allowed high schools to permit students to choose three of the five and this coming year elementary schools may be allowed to serve smaller portions.

In about two weeks, major changes will be announced in the entire focus of the meals, said Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who is in charge of food and consumer services at USDA.

She announced on Thursday a major change for 1978-79 in the school breakfast rules: no more "formulated grain-fortified products," which is government longhand for doughnuts, cream-filled cakes, coffee cake, oatmeal bars, "Astro food" and peanut-butter crackers.

The change is subject to revision after public comments are received through Sept. 26.

It was ordered because "we believe that use of these products in school-breakfast program is not consistent with promoting good food habits in children and does not further nutrition education through a well-balanced diet of conventional foods," she said.

In addition, she said, controversies over the sugar and fat content of the products and questions about their actual convenience for school use made USDA decide their inclusion wasn't justified.

Mental Tests Set In Stabbing

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A 6-year-old boy who admits he stabbed his baby half sister to death will be tested for two weeks before a court hearing is held to determine what to do with him.

Lucas County Juvenile Prosecutor Perry Driscoll said the boy would be examined for about two weeks at the Medical College of Ohio. A court hearing is scheduled Aug. 24, Driscoll said.

Meanwhile, 11-month-old Michelle Earl was to be buried today.

Police said the boy, whose identity was withheld, admitted he stabbed the baby in the back with a steak knife Monday as she lay in her crib.

The boy was charged with being dependent, a condition to warrant custody for his health or the health of the community.

It differed from a delinquency charge in that the court would decide whether the child needs psychiatric care or should be placed in a foster home, Driscoll said.

If the boy were charged with delinquency, he would be placed in the custody of the Ohio Youth Commission, which Driscoll doubted had facilities for a 6-year-old child.

"The prosecutor selected not to file delinquency charges at this time," Driscoll said Thursday. "If testing comes out showing him to be responsible, at that point we may change our mind. I feel there won't be a change in our decision."

Driscoll said there was no penalty in a dependency charge, but rehabilitative measures could be taken.

According to Driscoll's account of the incident, the children's mother, Cheryl Earl, 22, left them briefly to talk to a downstairs neighbor she planned to take shopping. A few minutes later, one of her four children ran downstairs from the apartment to tell Mrs. Earl what happened.

Driscoll said she then called the rescue squad. The baby died a short time later in a Toledo hospital.

Joseph Inman, an investigator for the Lucas County coroner, said the baby was stabbed once in the back with a steak knife.

Police first thought the infant was stabbed by her 3-year-old brother because detectives saw him holding the bloody knife. Police said the younger boy would have been unable to reach the crib.

Police released no motive for the stabbing, ruled a homicide by the Lucas County coroner.

Driscoll said Mrs. Earl and her husband, Mark, were very upset by the stabbing. He said they had been very cooperative with authorities and asked that their 3-year-old and 7-week-old sons be placed in foster homes temporarily.

MISS DEBRA L. HANNIGAN

MISS PATRICIA M. JEAN

Two Circleville girls are recent graduates of the Ohio State School of Cosmetology. They are Miss Debra Lynn Hannigan of 218 Monticello St. and Miss Patricia M. Jean of 6719 Tarlton Road.

Both have completed the 1,500 hour course in the internationally recognized "contour" basic training program and advanced training in all facets of hair design, styling and salon management.

Upon passing the examination given by the State Board of Cosmetology, they will receive professional cosmetologists license.

DR. PATRICIA E. WATSON

Dr. Patricia E. Watson, daughter of Mrs. W.C. (Hester) Watson, Kingston Pike, has been appointed the Assistant Administrator of the HUD Community Development Office in Annapolis, Md. The office is responsible for a $14 million HUD Block grant used for housing in Annapolis and surrounding Anne Arundel County. She will also serve as general counsel to the office when admitted to the Maryland Bar.

A June graduate of the Cornell University School of Law with a Doctor of Law degree, Dr. Watson also graduated from Pickaway High School and the Ohio State University, where she received her B. A. Degree summa cum laude and was a member of four honoraries, including Phi Beta Kappa. She is one of the first law graduates in the country with a specialty in geriatric law and legal services for the elderly.

She was a member of the vestry of the Episcopal Church at Cornell University for several terms, and has worked in the Diocese of Central New York on the Bishop's Committees on marriage, divorce, death and dying. She served as lay reader and minister to several outlying country parishes for the past two years.

MISS JUDITH L. LaFONTE

Miss Judy LaFontaine, of 6510 Hitler Road has been awarded a scholarship to attend the Ohio State School of Cosmetology. She will begin classes on Sept. 9.

Two Circleville students attending Ohio Wesleyan University in Delaware, were recognized for outstanding academic achievement on the Dean's List.

Included on this annual list are James T. Heacock of 200 Linden Lane, a freshman and Jack Lauderdale, Route Two, a junior.

Compiled annually, the dean's list includes freshmen and sophomores with a cumulative average of 3.30, juniors with a 3.35 and seniors with a 3.40.

Miss Barbara Elaine Schneider, a junior at Ohio State University, was notified recently of her admittance into the school of Dental Hygiene at OSU. Selection of students is made on the basis of point hours, dental aptitude test and personal interview.

Miss Schneider of 319 Meadow Lane, is studying a double major program, dentistry and sociology. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma honoraries.

Five students from Circleville and one from Tarlton were presented Summa Awards for outstanding undergraduate students at Ohio State University.

They are: Amy E. Curtiss, 505 Lawnwood Court; Bruce DeBruin, 22314 Bolender Pontius Road; Scott T. Harmount, 515 Lawnwood Court; Suzanne Milburn, 323 Meadow Lane; and Mary Christine Nelson, 560 Ridgewood Drive all of Circleville and Pamela L. Petzl of Route 2, Kingston.

The awards honor the top 10 per cent of all students transferring from University College to a degree-granting school or college during the academic year. Most award winners have completed their second year at Ohio State.

College deans, school directors, administrators and faculty members who teach honors courses joined about 350 of the honored students for certificate presentations May 26 in the Ohio Union ballroom. University President Harold L. Enarson was guest speaker.

Rita Knece, 546½ N. Court St., has completed her spring semester at Ohio Dominican College, Columbus, with a 4.0 grade point average.

Kathy Marie Johnson, 21531 Wintertgreen, was on the dean's list the second semester at Indiana University, Bloomington. She will be among the honored April 19, 1978, at the university's traditional Founder's Day program on the Bloomington Campus.

Board Member Resigns From Amanda-Clearcreek

During the Amanda-Clearcreek Board of Education meeting Monday, resignations were accepted and two contracts were offered.

A letter of resignation from board member Nancy Huffines was accepted, effective Aug. 1, 1977. Anyone interested in filling this vacancy should contact one of the remaining board members, Maynard Miller, Robert Foster, Dan D. Davis or Don Davis within the next 10 days.

Also, resignations were accepted from the custodian of the Stoutsville building Bill Mosley, effective Aug. 19, and Stoutsville teacher Kathy Winders.

One year contracts were offered to Michael Wagner as baseball coach for the high school and Phyllis Butts as remedial reading teacher under the Title I program.

James Flanagan, guidance counselor, gave his report for the 1976-77 school year.

Discussions were held on the passing of the operating levy on Aug. 25 and the gas curtailment for the upcoming school year. They also talked about adopting policies for tardiness and days missed by students.

Bids for new classroom equipment were accepted in the amount of $27,922.49 from various companies.

The bread bid was accepted from Betsy Ross Bakeries and milk from Deeds Dairy for the cafeteria this year.

Don Davis was appointed as alternate to the Ohio School Boards Association and the first substitute teacher list was adopted from the Fairfield County Schools Office.

The board commended Superintendent William A. Smith, Phyllis Harmon, clerk treasurer, and assistant clerk Patricia Willard for a well done job on the board of education books. The audit report from the State Examiners office was reviewed. All rules, regulations, expenditures and receipts were in accordance to state law.

The meeting was recessed until 7 p.m. Aug. 15 at the Amanda Building.

Sludge Removal Becomes Costly

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Moving between 600 and 1,600 tons of contaminated sludge will cost almost $5,000 and officials still are not sure who to bill.

The goo, contaminated with the suspected cancer causing compound polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), is now piled six feet deep in 18 drying beds at the city sewage treatment plant. But it will be moved to nearby vacant land.

The PCBs have been traced to waste water from the Westinghouse Electric Co.

Consumer Agency Sees Image Hike

MERRILLVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A presidential adviser said a proposed consumer protection agency would save taxpayers up to $8.5 million annually, but that information is not getting through to the public.

Instead, Esther Peterson said many persons view the proposed Agency for Consumer Protection as an example of burgeoning bureaucracy and big government.

Mrs. Peterson, 70, visited northwest Indiana with Rep. Floyd Fithian, D-Ind., this week to gauge public sentiment for the proposed agency and clearup misconceptions about it.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has set for public hearing Case No. 77-374-EL-FAC to review the fuel procurement practices and policies of the Dayton Power and Light Company, the operation of its fuel cost adjustment clause, and related matters. This hearing is scheduled to begin at 10:00 A.M., on August 15, 1977, at the offices of the Commission, 180 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio. All interested persons will be given an opportunity to be heard. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Commission.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When I was a kid playing lead guitar, indeed the only guitar, in the youthful Rich Marone All-Stars, nobody ever asked me to star in a prime time summer music series on CBS.

It may be because the All-Stars disbanded — at the demand of the audience — after rendering "Tenderly" and "Deep Purple" to start a Friday night teen dance in a church basement in Van Nuys, Calif.

I guess this hasn't befallen the young Keane Brothers — Tom is 13, John 12. Because the lads, who sing, play drums, piano and vibes, start their own four-week summer series on CBS tonight.

Unlike the Rich Marone All-Stars, the Keanes, sons of a record producer, kick off their act with a few gags about their age. Sample: Tom: "I'm new to television." John: "I'm new to everything."

They then go to their studio-set apartment for more banter aided by Jimmy Caesar, a grown-up comedian-impressionist. He tries to interest them in tickets for a fund-raising dinner. At $100 a plate.

Wow, one of the lads remarks, "If the plate is $100, how much is the dinner?" Caesar then impersonates Bing Crosby and Sammy Davis and exits. Then the lads sing "Help! Help!" and with good reason.

A sprightly moment occurs when actor Burt Reynolds, a man of sardonic humor, comes to their apartment and says he used to live there in 1959 while in his first series, "Riverboat."

The boys don't recall that year or that series. Notes Tom: "I'm only 13." "Thirteen?" cries Burt. "I've got suits older than that."

"Is that one of them?" inquires John. Well, folks, this repartee gives way to another song, indistinguishable from any teeny-bop tune now fouling the airwaves. Then come the Anita Mann Dancers.

They are a chorus line of girls aged 8 to 12. They dance to a classical music number entitled, "I Wanna Get Back on the Floor and Boogie."

It is hard to describe the way the lady tykes dance, but rest assured you'll never see it at Miss Mayberry's annual cotillion.

I'm sure the Keanes have talent, but the only time I detected it was when they had at a fine Count Basie tune, "Cute," in which John Keane did a brisk, not-bad jazz solo on vibes.

Saturday night, ABC starts a four-week summer sitcom producer Jimmie Komack first called "Girls, Girls, Girls," then "Sugar" and now "Sugar Time." It's about three aspiring lady rock singers.

Barbi Benton, once a Hugh Hefner associate, and Didi Carr and Marianne Black are the featured players. ABC says the premiere episode wasn't ready for an advance peep. Your move, gang.

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Favorable influences. Be eager to improve all situations, particularly in "small" details, so often overlooked or considered unimportant.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): A fine day for artistic and social interests. In all things, capitalize on your finesse and know-how.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Mercury influences stimulate your ingenuity, quick wit and perceptiveness. You should give a fine performance. DO — because others are depending on you.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): An excellent period for personal betterment, social affairs and long-range planning. Shun a tendency to "Keep up with the Joneses," however.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You are due for a unique surprise now, or soon, unless you work at odds with congenial influences. Wrap up duties without delay; save time for rest and relaxation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Stellar influences more auspicious than they may seem at first. Be consistent in effort and not timid about advancing new ideas or plans, and all should go well.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Splendid influences! Especially favored: creativity, originality. An excellent period for making new friends, cementing old ties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Planetary aspects suggest that you train thoughts along constructive lines as you move discreetly. Penetrate below the surface to learn the full truth in all situations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Care needed in experimentation, hastily contrived messages and writings; also transportation. Reason things out to a logical conclusion, then initiate appropriate measures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Take constructive action on a project you may have had in mind for some time. With good planning, you should be able to put it over now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Good stellar influences govern new projects as well as everyday routine. Cooperate with those who have both know-how and integrity. An excellent day for doing well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Not everything will go as you planned now, but remain steadfast. Your keen mind and innate common sense should see you through — and well.

YOU BORN TODAY are a canny, knowledgeable person, filled with a great sense of justice and an altruism which could lead you to great heights in the cause of world-betterment. As with most Leoites, you love the theater and could excel at any undertaking connected with it. You love color and uniforms, too, and may be attracted to the military service. Other outlets for your talents: music, literature, journalism, education, the law. You are most practical than many of your Sign, so may be more conservative in spending.

Birthdate of: Alfred Hitchcock, writer, motion picture producer, director; Sir George Grove, musicologists; Bert Lahr, comedian.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Care needed in experimentation, hastily contrived messages and writings; also transportation. Reason things out to a logical conclusion, then initiate appropriate measures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Take constructive action on a project you may have had in mind for some time. With good planning, you should be able to put it over now.

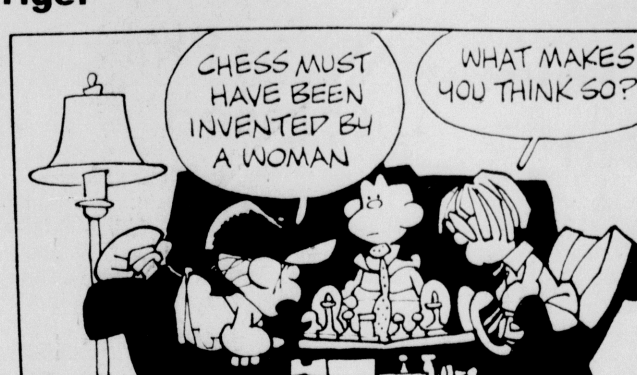

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Good stellar influences govern new projects as well as everyday routine. Cooperate with those who have both know-how and integrity. An excellent day for doing well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Not everything will go as you planned now, but remain steadfast. Your keen mind and innate common sense should see you through — and well.

YOU BORN TODAY are a canny, knowledgeable person, filled with a great sense of justice and an altruism which could lead you to great heights in the cause of world-betterment. As with most Leoites, you love the theater and could excel at any undertaking connected with it. You love color and uniforms, too, and may be attracted to the military service. Other outlets for your talents: music, literature, journalism, education, the law. You are most practical than many of your Sign, so may be more conservative in spending. Say Woman Paid To Keep Family Home

Mary F. Miller, 23, Columbus, was charged with vandalism after she apparently damaged cars owned by an Elm Grove Road man, Ernest J. Daniels, in an effort to keep him from testifying in an assault case.

Ms. Miller, who was picked up by Circleville Police and charged with the crime by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies, claimed she was paid to keep the Daniels family from appearing in court by Martin Elkins, Columbus.

Elkins was to appear in Franklin County Court this morning on an assault charge, and Daniels, 7070 Elm Grove Road, and his family were to testify in the case, Deputies said.

Deputies were summoned to Daniels' home shortly before midnight Thursday when a neighbor told Daniels of seeing a prowler. In checking, Daniels found that six tires on vehicles parked at his home were slashed with a knife, and the fuel line on another vehicle was cut.

Deputy Jim Fite was given a description of a car the neighbor saw parked in the area, and Circleville Police Ptl. Mike Eberhard spotted the vehicle two hours later on N. Court St.

Three passengers in the car were freed, according to Deputy Fite.

Dan Weaver Participates In Conference

Dan Weaver, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Weaver, 385 Eva Drive, was one of the 150 youth representatives from throughout the state to participate in the All Ohio Vocational Youth Conference — "Vocational Youth: Total Commitment Today for a Better Tomorrow."

Weaver, a senior at Circleville High School, was sponsored by the school's DECA Club. The four-day conference was held July 22 through 25 at the State FFA Camp Muskingum, located near Carrollton.

It was designed to include learning experiences which will enable the participants to assume major leading roles in the local school, community and region. The program contents involved leadership development in a critical evaluation of current issues of interest to the youth of the 70s.

A committee of 10 students was nominated by the Ohio Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education. It was responsible for determining which issues would be discussed.

The topics included: leadership, communication, self esteem, people abuse, capital punishment, who feeds the hungry world, energy crisis, the future of the family and free enterprise. Each topic included a presentation by a prominent speaker with opportunity for student participation.

Cincinnati Family Injured In Crash

ATLANTA (AP) — Four members of a Cincinnati, Ohio, family were injured Thursday when a tanker truck and several automobiles were involved in an accident on the downtown freeway connector in Atlanta.

Authorities said the truck caught fire and traffic on the freeway was stopped until firemen could extinguish the blaze.

Treated and released from an Atlanta hospital were Ronald Tate, 30, his wife Marianna, 28, and their two children, Terry, 6, and Timothy, 3.

Vocational Grads Employment Stats Released By State

The Ohio Department of Education's Division of Vocational Education released its latest statistics on the job placement of vocational high school students, after graduation.

Data indicates that 68.5 per cent of all 1976 vocational school graduates obtained full time employment related to their training.

Another 14.4 per cent of the graduates obtained full time employment in other occupations. While 8.3 per cent obtained part time jobs, only 8.8 per cent were unable to obtain jobs by January, 1977.

The unemployment rate throughout Ohio for persons 16-19 was 21.9 per cent in 1976, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Statistics.

Historical Society Fair Shows Set

Fairgoers will have the opportunity to explore the heritage of different nationalities, enjoy the nostalgic era of the Gay 90s or relive the sights and sounds of the American Revolution, when they visit the "Ohio Village Celebrations" Wednesday through Sunday, August 17 through the 21, during the 1977 Ohio State Fair.

"Ethnic Day," Wednesday, August 17, will begin the special event day festivities. Members from the Columbus City Pipes and Drummers, the Uhuru Drummers and Dancers and Hungarian and Whetstone International folk dancers will be on hand to entertain visitors throughout the day. Each group will be dressed in native costume, performing music of dance that is unique to their particular nationality. Performances will be offered at 12:30, 2:30, 4:30 and 6:30 in the main tent on the village square.

On Thursday and Friday, August 18 and 19, "The Great Featherstone," the famous ESP expert, will perform. Seen on TV's "Merv Griffin Show," he will astound audiences with his incredible mind-reading acts.

Then, on Saturday, August 20, visitors can re-live the days when handlebar moustaches, tandem bicycles and straw hats were the rage, when the village celebrates "Gay 90's Day." Visitors will be able to enjoy the harmony of barbershop quartets, listen to concerts by a steam calliope or watch the daring antics of high wheel cyclists as they demonstrate their balancing skills on high-wheeled velocipedes. Children will be enchanted with Punch and Judy puppet shows and the New Mime Troupe will entertain visitors with short skits performed in pantomime.

On Sunday, August 21, the 9th-13th Virginia Regiment will set up camp on the south field of the village for "Militia Muster Day." This authentically uniformed regiment will reenact the daily routine of a typical American soldier of the Revolutionary War, including drills, tactics, roll calls, work details and musket firing. At 2:00, 4:00 and 7:00, they will present a special show of the "Sights and Sounds of the American Revolution," including fife and drum music, marches and cannon-firing. The Onondaga Indian Dance Team will also be on hand at 12:30 and 6 p.m., demonstrating native dances of such tribes as the Apache, Chippewa and Winnebago.

The village will continue its special event celebrations the second week, with "Ohio Heritage Day," Wednesday, August 24, featuring Ohio's fashions in history and Ohio, U.S.A.; "Hootenanny Day," Saturday, August 27, a rousing combination of square-dancing and old-time musicians; and "Appalachian Folk Music Day," Sunday, August 28, including folk music, ranging from traditional to bluegrass.

And every day, the village will offer a full schedule of activities, including nature demonstrations in the Sullivant Museum, featuring a black rat snake and a tarantula; heritage craft demonstrations, everything from chair-caning to corn-cob-jelly making; old-fashioned games, the village craft shops and stores, performances by "The Great Featherstone"; full-course meals in the American House Restaurant and horse-drawn antique firewagon rides.

The Ohio Village will be open each Wednesday through Sunday, from 12 noon until 8 p.m. August 17 through the 28. Admission is free during the fair and shuttle bus service is available at the 20th Avenue gate.

Mental Health Service Plan Discussed

A Joint Planning Committee consisting of representatives of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board and the Scioto-Paint Valley Mental Health Center recently met with the "Project Planners" to discuss plans for the development of comprehensive mental health services for the five-county catchment area consisting of Fayette, Highland, Pickaway, Pike, and Ross Counties.

Members of the Joint Planning Committee are: Floyd Simantel, Howard Weaver, Frank Stanley, Martha Cottrill, Robert Shanks, Ralph Foulke, James Butler, Michael Geron, Gary Evans, Ralph Pidock, Perry Alexander, and George Puchovich.

Federal guidelines speak to the necessity of 12 mental health services such as: 24-hour emergency service, full range of counseling services, after hospital community care, adult day-care services, inpatient hospitalization, consultation and educational, drug abuse services, geriatric programs, etc.

According to Ms. Anna Marie Stott, Director of the Planning Project, "we will be looking at the needs of each county and base our plans on the most realistic and equitable way of meeting those needs. We are presently meeting with people in each county identifying names of individuals who would be willing to serve on a county advisory board."

Each county will have an advisory board with representatives named from those boards to the Joint Planning Committee. Advisory Boards will be meeting in their respective counties beginning September, 1977.

"We have received many names in each county, representing a wide range of interests. We will be contacting those persons to see if they will agree to serve on their local county advisory board," Ms. Scott said.

Tips For Ohio State Fairgoers

Anyone planning to attend the 1977 Ohio State Fair should park their cars in the fair parking lots from north and south bound I-71.

A fee will be charged, but free shuttlebus service is offered to transport fairgoers to and from the fair entrance.

When parking in the lot, motorists should note the row letter and color for easy location of their vehicle. Anyone who forgets where they parked their car should contact the Ohio State Highway Patrol Academy Garage on 17th Avenue for assistance.

Visitors should lock their vehicles and place all valuables, including citizen band radios, in the trunks of their cars. Pets are not permitted on the fairgrounds and should not be left in the owners' vehicles.

It is of great importance to wear proper footwear to avoid blisters and unneeded exhaustion. Fifty per cent of all people who require first aid are results from the wearing of improper footwear.

Fairgoers should take a ten minute rest break every hour to avoid heat

Golden Age Passports Available

The Golden Age Passport, a free lifetime entrance permit to certain federal areas where entrance fees are charged, can be obtained at 13 locations in Ohio, according to consolidated information from agencies issuing the passes.

Offered to citizens 62 or older, the Golden Age Passport admits the holder, family members, or a carload of accompanying persons to those national parks, monuments and recreation areas which charge entrance fees and are managed by the Federal Government. The Passport also provides a 50 per cent discount on federal "use" fees charged for facilities and services such as camping, boat launching and parking. The discount does not apply to fees charged by private concessioners.

Golden Age Passports can only be obtained in person. Law prohibits their issuance by mail. Applicants also must show proof of age in the form of a driver's license, birth certificate or other document. Lacking proof of age, the applicant may sign an affidavit attesting to age.

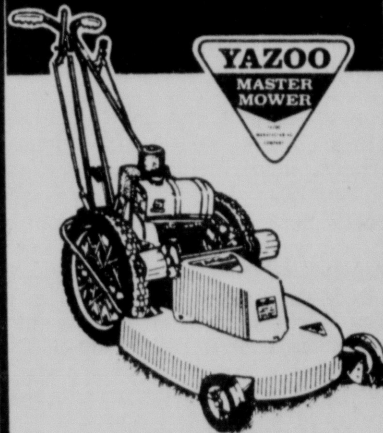

Offices issuing the Passports in Ohio are listed below by the city in which, or near which, the office is located:

Athens — District Ranger Station, Wayne National Forest; Chillicothe — Mound City Group National Monument; Cincinnati — William Howard Taft National Historic Site;

Columbus — Fish and Wildlife Service, Room 405, Federal Bldg., or 1735 Neil Ave., Ohio State University; Hebron — Hebron National Fish Hatchery; Ironton — District Ranger Station, Wayne National Forest; Lebanon — Ohio Field Office, Fish and Wildlife Service, Roll Bldg., or Miami River Area Office, Army Engineers, U.S. 42 North; Oak Harbor — Ottawa National Wildlife Refuge; Peninsula — Cuyahoga Valley National Recreation Area; Put-In-Bay — Perry's Victory and International Peace Memorial; Senecaville — Seneca National Fish Hatchery.
